U.S. Troops For Laos Next Move?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Bundy, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, said in Congressional testimony released Thursday that the United States would have to send troops to Laos if the North Vietnamese greatly stepped up the war there.

Kennedy Offer Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has politely rejected an offer by Attorney General Robert Kennedy to serve the U.S. administration in South Viet Nam, it was learned Thursday.

In the light of some political reports, sources said, Johnson did not want to be viewed as sending Kennedy out of the country during the political season, and he also wanted Kennedy to remain as attorney-general during this summer of possible racial conflict.

Guerrillas Leaving Borneo

TOKYO (AP) — Indonesian guerrillas began a long-awaited pullout from Malaysian Borneo Thursday, opening the way for a Tokyo summit conference to remove the threat of war between Indonesia and Malaysia.

Thirty-two heavily armed Indonesians passed through Tudu checkpoint in Malaysia this morning on their way to the border.

Banana Ship Capsizes

HAMBURG (AP)—The 3,128-ton West German banana freighter Brunswick capsized Thursday as she slid out of a drydock in Hamburg's port, harbor police reported.

A ship's steward died in the accident, they added, but about 100 other men aboard, including several Soviet sailors, were saved.

The vessel was to be sold to the Soviet Union in a few days, its owners, W. Bruns and Company of Hamburg, said.

Fugitive Flees Family Court

A 17-year-old youth who appeared in family court here yesterday for escaping from the Brunnes Lake industrial school—escaped from court.

Police said the youth "escaped custody at court," where he was under arrest at the time.

'Suicide' Wades In, Swims 60 Miles

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Miami man, jobless and depressed, says he waded into the Atlantic Ocean at Miami Beach Monday night, planning to "swim until I went down."

Thirty-six hours later, Leo Ledoux, 33, was hauled aboard a cabin cruiser three miles off Riviera Beach, 60 miles north of where he apparently entered the water. Ledoux's lips were parched and his eyes inflamed. Otherwise, he was in good physical condition.

"I waded out and then I started to swim," he related. "I swam and floated all night. After a while, I sort of changed my mind about dying. I started to swim back, but I guess I lost my sense of direction."

Ledoux got his clothes back from the beach Thursday. But someone had stolen his last $182.

Ledoux

Negroes Clubbed in Pool

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Club-swinging police clashed Thursday with Negroes trying to integrate a motel swimming pool, bringing renewed violence to a troubled city trying to work out its racial problems.

Cries of "Arrest them! Get the dogs!" came from a watching crowd of 100 whites as police ringed the pool at the Monson Motor Lodge and rained blows on heads, backs and shoulders of five Negro men and women in the water.

Finally, the bruised Negroes, along with two white companions, climbed out and went to jail.

Manager James Brock of the Monson Lodge, an almost daily target of the integrationists, went to the steps of the motel restaurant to meet the first group of demonstrators. Soon he was angrily pushing and shoving them.

Later, when five Negro and two white demonstrators appeared wearing swim suits, Brock ran into the driveway and shouted: "Get off! This is private property!"

Then the demonstrators jumped into the pool as whites

CAPITAL PLAN ON THE MOVE

By IAN STREET

Implementation of Victoria's $3,387,000 capital budget is to begin in earnest today following the overwhelming victory at the polls of the city council money bylaw Thursday.

The bylaw was approved by 77.8 per cent of the 4,174 ratepayers who cast ballots—3,251 to 875.

The turnout, although representing only 22.4 per cent of qualified voters, was better than expected for this time of year, and in fact, was only 700 less than voted in last December's civic elections.

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

The result was interpreted as a vote of confidence in Mayor R. B. Wilson and the members of city council.

"It is most encouraging," Mayor Wilson said last night, "that the public has seen fit to endorse council's scheme for capital works over the next five years in this handsome fashion."

"Now we have the tools to get on with the job."

SOME WORK DONE

City manager Dennis Young, who drew up the five-year program, said some preliminary work on an implementation schedule for the next 18-month period has already been done.

The big job ahead includes engineering studies, acquisition, and in some cases expropriation of property, application for grants from senior governments, drawing of plans.

BORROW $1,500,000

According to Mr. Young's findings the city can afford to borrow approximately $1,500,000 to carry out projects between now and the end of 1965.

For this amount there was no charge in the 1964 mill rate and taxes next year will be increased by about one-fifth of a mill to cover the capital borrowing.

Additional funds will be obtained in the form of federal and provincial grants.

BOWKER FIRST

The first project, beginning sometime in August, is likely to be the early stages of covering of Bowker Creek.

Working drawings for the 250-car parking facility in Centennial Square are already in preparation and it is hoped to call for tenders by early September with a start on construction sometime in October or November.

CONTRACT IN FALL

Plans for landscaping of Bastion Square are expected to be submitted for committee study by mid-July and it is hoped the contract can be let this fall so that it qualifies for full winter works grants. Tentative completion date is late spring or early summer of 1965.

A new section of the Rose-Blanhard second main entrance to the city that will provide two separate one-way streets.

'Drunken' Hundreds Stand Good Chance Of Retrieving Fines

In Trade Deck

Maple Leaf Joker

OTTAWA (CP)—Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) Thursday night criticized the trade department for distributing promotional card games in which the maple leaf symbol is used as the joker.

Industry Minister Drury said the cards were designed and ordered in January, 1963, before the Liberal government took office. (See also Pages 5, 18.)

A lawyer's victory in court has brought to light an improper procedure in the city's police court system, a procedure going back nine years. (See also page 21.)

The instance in question brought the release of Wilmfred Johnson, who had been jailed 20 days on a drunk charge.

ACTED QUICKLY

Her lawyer, Larry Hill, threatened similar proceedings on behalf of others, but Attorney-General Bonner Robert acted quickly Thursday and ordered the release of all prisoners wrongfully convicted.

It will mean freedom by Saturday for some 200 convicted drunks in Oakalla prison and Vancouver city jail.

NOT BOTHERING

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson found in a supreme court judgment that the prosecutor's office had not been bothering to give information of drunk charges to police court before the pleas of defendants are taken.

As lawyer Hill put it, the city has been collecting fines and bail forfeitures from people "not charged with anything."

CIVIL CLAIMS

Attorney-General Bonner said Thursday that any civil claims by persons wrongfully convicted would have to be launched by the individuals themselves.

What claims they have for return of fines and bail forfeitures is a matter that the city will study thoroughly as soon as possible, says Charles Fleming, deputy corporation counsel for Vancouver.

Topless Swim Suit

Eyeful, Awful or Unlawful?

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
NEW YORK (AP)—It's all according to the viewpoint whether the nudist thing in women's swimwear fashion, that topless wonder, is quite an eyeful, just awful, or unlawful.

Opinions differed this sharply this week as Rudi Gernreich's daring design for feminine sun worshippers was bared for buyers across the country after a bracing introduction here a few days earlier.

Some buyers stocked it to keep step with the trend toward overall sunbaths, an Associated Press survey showed. Others snubbed it because the mode did not suit the moral mood of their clientele, or the town.

Lord and Taylor's in New York, cancelled an order because the halved bikini is

"not in taste conforming to standards of the store."

"That's indecent exposure," exclaimed a spokesman for Filenes, in Boston.

"They'll never sell in Seattle," said a spokesman for Bon Marche in that city.

City Stores Don't, Won't—But Will

Victoria department stores don't and won't stock topless bathing suits but they will get them if requested, department spokesmen said yesterday.

Actually the topless suits have come too late for this summer's stocks.

When buying was done in November, the suits weren't available and it will be fall before the stores buy for next summer.

One woman in Eaton's sportswear department, when asked if the store would stock them, said "I would say emphatically not." But department manager Brian Johnston said they might be carried as a matter of interest.

"If we are asked for them, we will air express them in. We haven't been offered any by our Canadian agent," Mr. Johnston said.

He said that he plans to visit the Vancouver Buy Mart Monday and expects that salesmen there will discuss the suits with buyers.

"The idea is almost for next season," Mr. Johnston said.

Another store spokesman said the store is not planning to get any suits in and added, "I don't feel there is a market for them in Victoria."

Capital Plan Passes

thoroughfare all the way from Topaz to Queens is also in the final planning stage.

COMPLETE ROAD

The expropriation of property along the route will begin almost immediately and the new roadway linking the Hillside-Blanchard intersection with Rose at Topaz will be completed in the next few months.

Preliminary drawings are also being prepared for a new main trunk sewer connecting with the outfall at Clover Point. The major project will be completed in three stages during the summers of 1965, '66 and '67.

TRUNK MAIN FIRST

Until the trunk main is completed it will not be possible to commence construction of the new James Bay sewer system which will connect with it. The James Bay system is scheduled to begin building in the winter of 1967 and continue through most of 1968.

Extension and rebuilding of the Clover Point sewer outfall, a project that ranks high on everybody's list of priorities because it will virtually eliminate pollution of Dallas Road beaches, must await hydrographic surveys and its starting date is indefinite.

BEAUTIFICATION '65

It is expected, too, that the major portion of the downtown beautification program won't be started until well into 1965.

Mayor Wilson summed up council's feelings when he said: "We would like to do all the projects now. But this is impossible for several reasons. We must spread our borrowing over five years. We need engineering studies and plans and we must acquire a good deal of property."

Mr. Young, who headed the city hall team which mounted the capital budget campaign, said he wasn't downhearted by the relatively small turnout.

The vote was so overwhelmingly in favor of the capital budget that it indicates a very large percentage of satisfied voters didn't even bother to turn out," the city manager said.

Both Mayor Wilson and the manager paid tribute to the efforts of community groups actively supported the campaign.

SEE CHANGES

Ald. Austin Curtis, acting chairman of finance, commented: "At least the people can now be sure that they will see some changes in Victoria during the next five years."

Ald. Lily Wilson said: "It's nice to think that the people have confidence in city council."

"I'm delighted with the result," said Ald. Cecil Parrott.

50 to Plan Village

About 50 persons from all parts of Vancouver Island will attend a luncheon seminar Saturday in the Union Centre on Quadra, to discuss the proposed international children's summer village near Victoria in 1965.

Canadian Pay Miffs French

PARIS (Reuters) — About 1,600 employees on the permanent staff of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development staged a five-hour "warning" strike over pay and working conditions.

Among grievances was the claim that only Canadian and American employees were paid directly but their governments and their pay scales were "clearly superior" to employees of other nationalities.

Lawyer Gets Commons Opens Red-Faced Debate

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — A former president of the Canadian Bar Association said Thursday night that lawyers must take the lead in freeing Canadian labor from American domination.

Gen. J. A. Clark, speaking to the annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association's British Columbia section, referred specifically to a strike now going on at Albert, where a walk-out of some 60 office workers is keeping 4,000 other workers idle at a forest-industry complex.

U.S. CONTROL?

"Who has authority to decide for the union?" asked Gen. Clark. "A man in Chicago. We read in the press that the B.C. union is in touch daily with Chicago. The Canadian union man does what he is told to do by someone in another country."

An immediate reply came from Bill Lowe, Canadian vice-president of the Office Employees International Union (CLO).

NO PART TAKEN

He said the union's headquarters is in Washington, D.C., not Chicago, and that the headquarters has taken no part in the dispute except to give financial aid.

"The bar association has the type of security that we're seeking for our members. In fact they have far better," said Mr. Lowe.

"All lawyers must be members of their group to practise.

They have a closed shop and all we're asking for is a union shop."

is," but his store will get them on request.

Like the other department stores, Woodward's had not been approached by manufacturers or customers, but suits would be ordered on request.

But the department would not consider stocking them without consultation with management because "it's a matter of store policy."

He didn't think that women would be allowed to wear the topless suits in public and doubted if they would be allowed to wear them in a garden that was exposed to public view, particularly if a complaint was made.

He said that bikinis were barred from beaches when they first came out, but women wore them and "the police looked the other way."

"But there will probably be a few who will put it to the test," he thought.

OTTAWA (UPI)—With embarrased speeches from all sides, the Canadian House of Commons began Thursday debating a resolution to ask the British Parliament to amend the Canadian constitution so survivors' benefits can be included in the proposed Canada pension plan.

Prime Minister Pearson said it was an "unhappy situation" for an independent country approaching its 100th birthday to need the approval of another country's parliament for a constitutional amendment.

He said the procedure was "strangely out of date and inappropriate."

"But if it is anomalous and humiliating to go to the British parliament, it is self-inflicted humiliation," the Prime Minister said.

The Canadian constitution is embodied in the British North America Act, passed by the British parliament when Canadian Confederation was formed in 1867.

It has never been transplanted to Canada because the provinces and the federal government have never been able to agree how it should be written or amended. In practice, an amendment affecting both federal and provincial jurisdictions requires the approval of all provinces plus Ottawa before an "address" is sent to the crown asking it to seek British parliamentary approval.

The present resolution must be forwarded quickly to London before parliament there adjourns for the summer.

A San Francisco buyer has already taken the plunge in one. And actress Pamela Tiffin said she'd go along with the "prevailing mood," like at spots on the Riviera.

"But I'd never wear such a revealing suit if I were the only woman in the party as exposed. That would be just plain exhibitionism."

The prevailing mood of the Seattle police department is to arrest immediately the wearer of such a garment on a public beach.

Some buyers who bypassed the bare bosom balking unit believe the timing is not right for it, but the day will come, they say, revealing early reaction to the bikini.

Decision About Varicose Veins Involves Complicated Factors

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Should I have my varicose veins "stripped" or "cut"? I have big, bulging veins above the knee. The veins rugose in all three and swell and ache terribly. I am afraid it will break open there.—Mrs. O.G.

First, neither you (nor I) should decide whether the veins should be cut and tied, or stripped. Your surgeon is the one to decide that, because it depends on the location, degree of trouble, and such factors.

Once the veins have been stripped (removed), or tied, they will not bother you any more. But that does not mean that other veins cannot become varicose.

Frankly, they sometimes do. If you were born with veins that are on the weak side, and some become varicose, you should accept the fact that others may, too.

Some people complain that they have had a recurrence of varicose veins after the operation, and that the original veins are "coming back." That isn't so.

Some people have had the operation and have never had any further trouble. They were luckier—and probably had better veins to start with.

Itching is one of several consequences of varicose veins. It is a result of the impaired circulation. But an even more serious result is the formation of ulcers which—for the same reason—refuse to heal until the faulty veins have been removed.

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like your advice about my four-month-old granddaughter. Her father is so rough when playing with her. He tosses her up in the air and catches her, shakes her, holds her above his head with one hand, picks her up by an arm or a leg. Sometimes she smiles but usually it scares her.

Can this hurt her heart or make her mentally retarded?

She seems very bright now.—Mrs. L.F.

I wouldn't worry about her heart, nor about retardation unless this father—who sounds a bit mentally retarded to me—drops her and she suffers a brain injury.

I don't think that babies have to be kept nestled in cotton wool, but I'm definitely against taking any needless risks with them. The father could drop her, or dislocate a shoulder or hip or knee with such gymnastics.

Dear Dr. Molner: I recently had an operation on my neck to remove a lump in or near the thyroid. It was diagnosed as Hashimoto's struma. It was not malignant. Is there a chance of its spreading or returning?—G.C.P.

Hashimoto's disease is a form of thyroiditis—inflammation of the thyroid gland. "Struma" means a lump or goiter. The condition is not regarded as malignant, and will not return if the affected tissue in the thyroid has been removed.

Six Inches of Snow Hits Johannesburg

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—Early risers woke Thursday to find Johannesburg covered with six inches of snow. The South African city's last heavy snow was in September, 1962. Heavy snow was also reported in Cape Province and the Orange Free State. On some farms snowdrifts were three feet deep.

Disarmament Agenda Fixed After 27 Wrangling Months

GENEVA (UPI)—The United States and Soviet Union yesterday reached agreement on a compromise agenda for the 17-nation disarmament conference after 27 months of wrangling.

The agreement fanned western hopes for solid progress at the conference which began in March, 1962.

Villagers Are Up In Tomatoes

SELBY, England (UPI)—It was bad enough when British Railways chief Dr. Richard Beeching decided to close a local railway line for economic reasons.

But when he reopened the tracks for a day so that his special train could make an inspection tour of the Midlands, that was last straw for the people of Drax, a village near here.

About 12 Drax residents lined up along the rails and pitched ripe tomatoes at Beeching's coach in protest.

"You've wrecked our link with the outside world," screamed Mrs. Linda Collins, 21, splattering a tomato over the window at Beeching's side.

Asked later if he was having any second thoughts about closing down service to Drax, Beeching replied: "No."

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin also said Moscow would adopt "a flexible position" on American proposals for a "bonfire" of jet bombers as the first physical act of disarmament.

Western spokesmen said they were "encouraged" by Zorin's speech. Zorin is temporarily heading the Soviet delegation.

The agenda covers only the next five weeks. But American officials said it was evidence of the spirit of co-operation currently prevailing at the conference.

Until yesterday the Soviet Union had insisted that any agenda include talks on a NATO-Warsaw alliance non-aggression pact. The west refused, arguing that it was not a disarmament subject.

Up to now, authorities said in Ottawa yesterday Canada has regarded a proposed bomber bonfire as strictly a matter between the United States and Russia with only obsolescent planes involved.

But there are current reports that if the U.S. and Russia reach agreement on such a disarmament measure other countries such as Canada would be asked to toss their bombers on the scrap heap as well.

Lancasters Our Bit For Bomber Bonfire

OTTAWA (CP)—If Canada is asked to toss bombers on the "bonfire" which United States and Russia have agreed to discuss at Geneva, it won't be the CF-104. Defence sources said they don't have their nuclear armament yet, but might be willing to contribute some old Lancaster bombers.

Argues with Danes

Mr. K Shakes Fist And Refuses Drink

ODENSE, Denmark (UPI)—A photographer, frightened five Soviet Premier Khrushchev yesterday discussed the race of vodka in a busy day of touring Denmark's farm belt.

He also argued about communism with well-to-do Danish farmers, passed out miniature missile pins, and boasted that Russia would be producing twice as much fertilizer as the United States in the next seven years.

FLASHED SMILE However, Mrs. Khrushchev flashed a smile after being presented with a statuette representing the Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale character "The Women With the Eggs" in front of the town hall in Odense.

Khrushchev flew to this town 100 miles from Copenhagen, where he arrived Wednesday to begin his tour of Denmark, Norway and Sweden. He visited the birthplace of Hans Christian Andersen, the 19th-century Danish fairy tale author, and the city hall. Ten thousand Danes smiled, applauded, and waved.

WAITED HOUR Another 1,500 Danes waited an hour at Khrushchev's Copenhagen hotel to welcome him back last evening.

Khrushchev told one audience in Odense that the Russians will never be caught again with a shortage of wheat like the one they had this year.

"We shall solve our problems within seven years or you can consider that I am not a Communist," he said. "You can have my party card if that happens."

Science May Aid Body To Abort Abnormalities

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP)—A research scientist says investigation now under way could lead to discoveries that would help the human body cast off unborn abnormal children.

Dr. David H. Carr of London, Ont., here to attend the annual meeting of the Canadian Society for the study of Fertility, said in an interview Thursday he is engaged in basic research into miscarriage, which he described as "spontaneous abortion."

UP TO OTHERS

He stressed that the application of any discoveries resulting from his findings would be up to others. But the body now aborted some abnormalities in a "very efficient way."

He said about 15 per cent of all pregnancies end in miscarriages. Past research had shown that about 60 per cent of these pregnancies would have produced abnormal babies. Now his research had shown that 22 per cent of them would have had chromosome abnormality.

Chromosomes are forms that control the structural development of the body.

RESEMBLE BLUE PRINT

Dr. Carr said they are similar to a blue print. Having chromosome abnormality was like "building a house in which the blueprint is disordered."

With chromosome abnormalities a child could be anything from sterile to mentally retarded. A mongoloid baby — there is about one in every 600 births — had this abnormality.

One out of about 200 babies were abnormal in some way, he said. But the body, using some mysterious method, rejected a far greater number of abnormalities through miscarriage.

Time to Tell

OTTAWA PARTISAN forces could well take a lead from the action of their counterparts in the British House of Commons this week. On Wednesday both the major political parties there publicly agreed with each other that the time had come for Communist China to be granted admission to the United Nations.

Though it has been no secret that both the Conservative Party and the Labor Party have long favored a UN seat for the Peking regime, neither has been willing to openly stress this view, possibly in deference to the United States whose opposition to such a policy is well known.

A similar situation now exists in Ottawa. Privately—and some times publicly—both Liberal and Tory leaders have indicated their hope that Red China would be allowed into the international organization.

Canada, as Britain, has long done business with the Chinese People's Republic. Indeed, it has been said with some justification, that if it weren't for the Chinese wheat agreement Canada's economy would be in a parlous state at the moment. On this basis alone it would seem logical that Canada should be anxious to see her major customer given the stamp of respectability offered by membership in the United Nations.

There are other and even more vital reasons why Canada should support such a move despite objections from the United States. Foremost among these is the possibility that membership in the United Nations organization would serve to show Communist China the dangers and futility of a policy of aggression.

Prime Minister Sir Alex Douglas-Home underlines this point by stating that if China were in the United Nations there would be increased contact between her and the West with the result that she could gradually be weaned away from her war-like attitude "as we have weaned the Russians away from this policy of force."

Now would be a good time for Canada's political leaders to make their views on the matter known both at home and to the rest of the world.

Now We Know

NOT WITHOUT reason in view of previous placating gestures by the Pearson government towards Quebec, it has been a general feeling in other parts of the country that the new maple leaf flag is designed for the same end, to wit: to please French-Canadians.

If any doubts remain as to this they have been removed by the statement of Liberal MP John R. Matheson, the individual cited as having contributed most to the government's choice of the proposed new flag.

Speaking in the current House debate on the subject he says Canadians should remember that "the French are part of the family." One might suggest it has been impossible of late ever to forget this, since Quebec is proving itself the most troublesome member of the family.

And because of this national ensemble, Mr. Matheson goes on, every member of the family "is loved and the distress of one is the distress of all." One could reply perhaps that the loving seems to be enjoined on one side only, and that it is those whom he thinks are distressed who are causing no little distress to the rest of the family.

But the true revelation of his perspective with regard to the new flag comes with his argument that he doesn't consider it as a concession to do "what is fair and what is kind."

Now we know why the Red Ensign is being cast aside and a new flag design fashioned to take its place—to be kind to Quebec.

And it does not matter that fairness works both ways, and that two-thirds of the national family has to be robbed of an historic emblem primarily to soothe Quebec.

The truth will out, in spite of the rhetorical ingenuity employed by the Pearson government to force adoption of its maple leaf flag.

Looking Ahead

MR. GEORGE CHATTERTON while reeve of Saanich displayed the keenest interest—in the benefit of his municipality and the whole region—in planning for future development. It is pleasing to note that he carries the same concern with him, in relation to all of Canada's communities, in his parliamentary career.

Far from being a passive and silent sifter in the Commons, the Esquimalt-Saanich MP has driven home more than one telling blow recently in relation to Mr. Pearson's flag manoeuvring. And as might properly be expected of a member of the official Opposition, he took the occasion of debate on amending the National Housing Act to draw attention to unfulfilled Liberal campaign promises in this regard, and to note that "this legislation was taken almost in toto from the policy of the previous government."

But it is a mark of Mr. Chatterton's quality that while he is an eager partisan warrior his criticism is in the main constructive. Certainly that can be said of his assessment of the NHA bill as seriously lacking in one respect.

The bill, he said, "does nothing to prevent the increasing difficulties that urbanization is causing. What it does is to lessen some of the difficulties that have been created. It tends to remove the blight that exists. It tends to prevent further deterioration of the area which is degenerating, but it does not prevent blight that will follow in new areas, in the growing areas of urban centres."

But Mr. Chatterton did not leave his complaint as an indictment alone.

"I would urge the minister to get his staff, perhaps in conjunction with the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and the National Research Council, to consider these measures which might be taken to prevent what has happened, and what is happening now in the older parts of our cities, from occurring in the suburbs which is developing so rapidly," he suggested. "This is where the blighted areas of the future will occur, and deterioration will come about much more rapidly than has been the case in the cores of our existing centres."

These were words of wisdom from one acutely aware of a menacing problem; a suggestion that the government could well accept from an MP who though a political opponent displays a supreme regard for the well-being of the country.

"Heh heh... Technical Difficulties"

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax,
By TOM TAYLOR

MORE than once for reasons which need not be elaborated I've concluded that I was born too soon. The experimental chaps at the federal farm in Saanich have heighed my suspicions.

They're on the border of a breakthrough, they think, to limit the growth of shrubs and make home gardening. If not an instant kind of business then one that wouldn't get bigger and bigger.

Made-to-measure trees, as it were, like buying a suit off the rack.

What a boon is in prospect for the lucky ones of whom, I'm afraid, yours truly would not be counted. For, of course, the consummation of this gardening paradise is yet a bit off.

But never fear (twill come, I haven't a doubt. That's what confirms my belief I was ushered onto the human scene too early.

You may assume from this I am not precisely the most loving valet that Mother Earth has and you'd be right. Still and all I do my bit.

But those boulevard trees, for example, which the Saanich lads fancy may also respond to this retarded growth scheme. Four of them hang over my place like the Eiffel Tower in quadruplicate. And when I besech my municipal friends to cut them all they reply is that God put them there.

Nor when I suggest diffidently that He didn't plant them 40 feet high do they do other than smile indulgently.

And they're doing them, really. I mean the trees, I'd better make clear. Gerry oaks must be the most debris devouring of all trees. They never cease scattering largesse of the kind I could well do without.

Their number is up, though, some day in the future, if not those of my immediate perimeter at least their heirs. I suppose I could consider this a kind of academic consolation.

I notice, however, and with sadness, that nothing is fustled about putting a damper on the growing productivity of grass. Now hers would be the scene of horticultural achievement, a discovery that would leave lawns just as they are without periodic sheaving. Nothing in the lexicon of gardening could match such a scientific advance.

Mind you, I don't seriously object to cutting the lawn; it's just that it appears such a useless operation. You trim it short and that makes it grow faster. And you repeat the performance with the same result. And so on for ever. Seems rather futile, somehow.

And grass is so tricky, too. Some blades lie down as the mower approaches and then flout themselves upright when you've passed, a positive insult. And of course a green award may pop up where you don't want it and stay hidden where you do want it.

How wonderful if once sprouted grass had no alternative but to stay put at a given height. But even if lawns like plants and shrubs some day come under the ban I'm not alas, likely to be a beneficiary. No wonder I'm conformed in the notion I was born too soon.

Ottawa Offbeat

IF the official Opposition can, exacerbate Prime Minister Pearson into such an excess of exasperation as to suddenly call the election that almost everybody now feels certain he must surely be planning, it will be, by no means, a one-man job.

The Opposition strategy is to hurry him, to push the prime minister into the campaign ahead of schedule.

They believe firmly, and so even do a great many Liberals, that he has it time-tabled for late fall or, just possibly, early spring.

If they can harry and harass him into going before he is ready, their prospects at the polls would be that much better.

The Conservatives long since have been reconciled to the political fact of life that the "splitter" groups are not going to combine with them to defeat the government in a voting of strength in the Commons.

So the only alternative—in forcing him to prematurely play his hand—is to make things so madly difficult in Parliament as to make even an election look like an escape—a way out of an impossible situation.

The Opposition is solidly satisfied that the country is sour on the administration over the flag, Quebec, swollen government costs all along the line despite deep defence cuts, waste, extravagance and fraud.

The trick, then, is to drive the administration to the country sooner than it plans to go. Daily, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker is up, cutting and slashing at the prime minister and the cabinet.

There is a quality of stubborn ferocity about it, a certain rock-hard one-mindedness, a deadly determination.

He will not be stopped—mainly because there is no one on the government front benches who can be sure of doing it. They may hammer him back down into his seat today, but he's up and fighting tomorrow, and they get hammered.

But even so, formidable warrior that he is, he couldn't do it alone.

He's getting help. Mainly from five equally determined Opposition MPs.

Odd, isn't it, that out of a Commons membership of 94, there would be only five fevered, fighting partisans? But perhaps it is that most of the other 89 are serving and struggling in less spectacular ways.

The five: French-Canadian MPs, Louis-Joseph Pigeon of Joliette, P.A. Montcalm, and former Mines Minister Paul Martineau of Pontiac-Témiscamingue, together with Erik Nielsen of the Yukon, Eugene Rheaume of the Northwest Territories, and former Labor Minister Mike Starr.

Nielsen and Pigeon are the flaming partisans.

Never a day goes by that Pigeon isn't up, grinding away at the prime minister with outrageously out of order questions—so exasperatingly damaging to the prime minister's equanimity because of their obvious intent to irritate and upset.

Pigeon won't be stopped.

either. By anyone. Not the prime minister nor even Mr. Speaker.

He carries on regardless of rulings, chanting his political war-cry "Same old bunch—same old gang" that he is striving, with some success, to make a national by-word for the Liberals.

Nielsen is just as tough a cookie.

As they do to Pigeon, the Liberal backbenchers try, and fail, to hiss him into silence. He stands there, sharp-featured face impassive, head set of bowing into the storm of hoots and howls, waiting for it to subside, then barks in.

If the ulcer rate is up among the Liberals—and it must be, if fury and frustration are any measure of it—Nielsen even more perhaps than Pigeon, is the man responsible.

Mike Starr, of late, for the agreeable, easy-going type of person he has always been, blows up in magnificent bursts of anger, excoriating the Liberals like an avenging angel.

His astonishing fury can be such that the government benches often sit stunned.

Paul Martineau is the Opposition torpedo man. He specializes in the explosive question. They are nasty, politically prickly, difficult, sometimes even dangerous to answer.

A French Canadian, like Pigeon, he gnaws at the English-speaking members of the cabinet in "the other language," which doesn't make it any easier for them.

But Rheaume is the specialist with the rapier. He, of them all, is the most likely to come up with the catch-word or phrase that will do the government real damage.

His theme is the "arrogance" of the administration and he peppers Hansard with the word. He put it at his nearest the other day when, scornfully, he addressed himself to the government.

"Come off it," he said acidly, "quit pretending that God is some kind of a Grit."

Nationalism

The threat at present served as a flag for Canada is unhappy sample of the growing feeling of nationalism now on dominating throughout our unhappy world.

The world as it is today, with its wars, its strikes, its racial contempt and hatred, its segregation of millions and consequent cruel slavery of those considered unequal, surely affords matter for intelligent and reasonable consideration and deep study.

When it is evident that going on as we are in the world, a few more years of this mess will result in no Canadians to need a flag or even a country, since with the weapons already at hand a few hours could wipe out practically all animal life on the earth. That most certain will come unless we adopt more a system of co-existence, abandon much of our hateful nationalism, and turn our interest to service to world people rather than to national and useless symbolism—such as "flags."

Worth Saving

At last it has been realized that something in our midst is worth saving, the old Craig flower man. Help has come from the federal government and now it is up to our progressive premier to give the final lift.

We hear of our booming tourist trade. Let us give them what they do not get at home, and the records of this honor show that it is really appreciated. To those of us native-born it is part of our history. Long may it stay to reveal our pioneer past and show the dignity of life as it was lived over 100 years ago.

In 'Temporary' Capital

Tired of Waiting

By NEAL ASCHEBORN from Bonn

THEY are calling it "Brasilia-on-Rhine." Not that the present Parliament buildings in Bonn, a few blocks of inoffensive white cement, sheltering under great green trees by the bank of the river, deserve the title. But a sudden quarrel has blown up over the $33 million plan to rebuild the site with a 25-storey skyscraper and a whole series of ambitious buildings.

The plans had been already drawn up, approved by the executive of the Bundestag and passed to Herr Eugen Gerstenmaier, the Speaker, when Chancellor Erhard intervened to say that in his view it was the wrong moment to spend such large sums of money. The federal government would be setting a bad example of extravagance to the rest of Germany.

Now, after 14 uncomfortable and crowded years, most of them are out of patience with symbolic inconvenience. The planned "Brasilia" is an admission that German reunification is not round the corner.

More interesting than the objection of expense is the question of Bonn's status as a "temporary capital," serving as the home of democracy only until the day of German reunification returns and an all-German Parliament meets in the Reichstag in Berlin. Bonn, once a quiet little university town, but now a chaos of road jams and inflated prices, was chosen rather than the big city of Frankfurt deliberately to demonstrate this, and the first members of Parliament chose to "sit on their packed trunks," as a journalist here put it, rather than to erect large and apparently permanent buildings on the Bonn site.

The chancellor put his criticism in the form of a letter to Herr Gerstenmaier, which—by Messrs. not yet explained—was leaked to the press before the Speaker had a chance to reply. On the eve of Erhard's departure for the United States, Gerstenmaier reached him with an angry telephone call, and made it clear that he intended to defend the rebuilding plans. In this, he was backed up by the Christian Democrats (Dr. Erhard's own party), and by the Social Democratic Opposition. The parliamentary manager of the Social Democrats went so far as to say that Erhard's letter and its release to the press was calculated to awake "anti-parliamentary resentments," and to give the chancellor himself a public alibi.

It is true that it is Erhard's "style" to deal with the public directly and sometimes to do so over the heads of the political parties, including his own. Whatever the needs of Bundestag members for better quarters, he is aware of public suspicion of politicians who "pay themselves good salaries and live well at our expense."

That sort of cynicism exists in all countries, but in Germany, still learning democratic practice, it could be particularly harmful.

But Chancellor Erhard, for all the public support he may find, faces a most formidable opponent in Herr Gerstenmaier. His moral authority is immense.

Not only is he one of the very rare survivors of the July 20, 1944, plot against Hitler—which gives him a unique position in discussion—but as Speaker of the West German Parliament, he is regarded as the master-mane of parliamentary democracy. It is his task to defend Parliament against its enemies, and to tutor members who often are reluctant to fight for their privileges.

Dalling with the press, who have often tended to be sceptical of the energies of the Bundestag, Gerstenmaier can be fierce indeed. Nationalism and thrift may both argue against the "Brasilia" plan, but in offending both his own party and Gerstenmaier himself, Chancellor Erhard has put himself in a most awkward political position.

South Africa Knew Bitter Flag Issue

By BRIAN BARROW, from Capetown

South Africans can sympathize with Canadians during the flag debate because the uproar in Canada is almost exactly parallel to similar disputes in South Africa.

Perhaps people here can even indulge in a little smugness because the bitter South African flag debate is in the past, a dead issue.

South Africans now know that the design of the flag just is not worth all the heat engendered by opposing extremists, heat that brought this country to the verge of civil war in 1927 and caused a political upheaval 30 years later.

The flag has changed, the Union Jack and God Save the Queen have gone for good. All the bitterness of only seven years ago has died away. South Africans have found that though the symbols change, the things they stand for remain.

Even among those English-speaking South Africans who once vowed to fight to the death to keep the British flag and anthem, the feeling now is mainly a kind of relief that the argument is over.

Observing the Canadian debate from here, the South African believes events may well take the same course in Canada as they did here because the histories of the disputes are remarkably similar.

Just as the Union Jack has reminded French-Canadians of their defeat at the hands of the British two centuries ago, so it was a symbol of defeat and oppression to the Nationalist Afrikaner following the Boer War.

The flag of the Transvaal, one of the conquered states, was the Vierkleur—red, white and blue horizontal stripes with a vertical green stripe next to the flagstaff.

The Vierkleur was dropped after the establishment of the Union of South Africa in 1910—provoking bitter dissatisfaction among Afrikaners—to be replaced by the Red Ensign with the South African coat of arms in the top fly corner.

What a Country!

Incredible Laos Never-Never Land

By DONALD NEFF, from Vientiane

The temptation for the average Westerner is to take one astonished look at the tangled complexities choking Laos, throw up his hands in despair and declare it a never-never Alice in Wonderland nation.

The western mind revolts at the realization that such a tiny state could have such big and numerous problems.

Laos has only five doctors, two dentists and four engineers to serve an estimated 2,500,000 people.

At least 90 per cent of the people are infected by parasites, ingested through impure drinking water and about 20 per cent are suffering from malnutrition resulting from improper diets.

The death rate of babies and of women during childbirth is high because of unsanitary child delivery methods.

Many infants die of starvation. A lingering custom calling for mothers to eat nothing for 20 days after giving birth frequently results in their milk drying up.

Rice must then be fed to the infant since Laotians do not milk their cows and there is no whole milk in the entire country.

Rice does not contain the proteins a child needs and many of the newborn starve to death as a result.

More than 80 per cent of Laotians cannot read or write and the entire country currently is only turning out 75 high school graduates a year.

There is not one college in the country, no television station, no railroad, no national telephone service and few roads. The 91,000 square mile nation is completely landlocked. To the south and east are Vietnam and Cambodia, to the west, Thailand and Burma and to the north, China.

The Laotians still observe a three-hour daily siesta, there is no industry beyond some tin mining and the biggest business in all of Laos is the growing of opium.

They are nominally believers in Buddhism but a great many Laotians are actually believers in a multi-populated spirit world and evil spirits who must be pacified.

They are a gentle, easy-going people with no military tradition at all and no military heroes in their history. They would rather sit in the shade and smoke opium or marijuana than argue with their neighbor or plan for next year's crops.

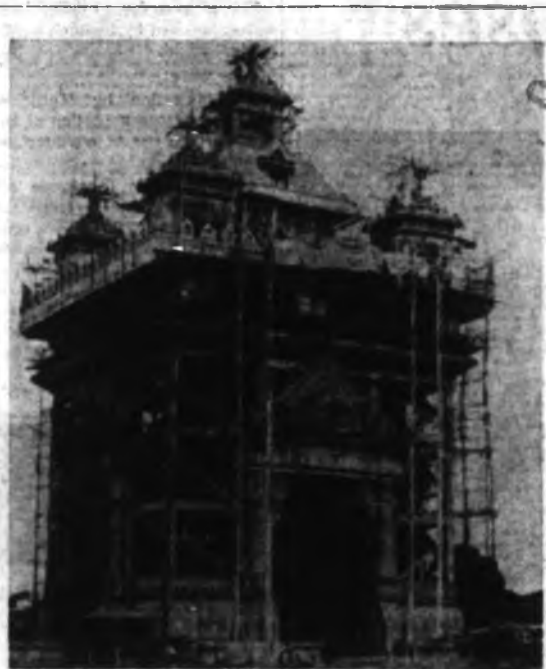

Added to its isolated position, the lack of any sizable natural resources and the lethargy of its people, is the fact that ethnically Laos is a checkered patchwork.

There has never actually been a census but experts estimate there are less than 2,000,000 Laotians actually in Laos. There are nearly 600,000 Kha, people even more primitive than the Laotians, and two other tribal groups who live mainly in the mountains, Meo and Yao.

Overlying all these unlikely elements which willy-nilly have been decreed a nation by other world powers is a political climate as fluid and changing as a kaleidoscope.

Coveted Prize Pathetic

By EDWARD NEILAN From Vientiane

Vientiane is the "prize" which the Chinese Communists covet in their plans to take over all of Southeast Asia.

Vientiane is supposed to be the capital city of Laos but it is also the world capital of indifference.

The newest hotel in Vientiane is typical. It is the Lane Xang. It has all the modern conveniences including a grand dining room. On inspecting the completed building the architect realized he had forgotten to put in a kitchen. Until a kitchen can be built, orders are taken by bicycle to the nearby Cafe Royal and food is bicycled back to the grand dining room.

Laos also has what could be the largest monument this side of the Arch of Triumph in Paris. It is the Independence Arch, under construction for two years. Funds earmarked for the project have been escaping in all directions.

The king of Laos rides around in a white Edsel with the Laotian symbol, three white elephants under a white umbrella, painted on the side.

This is Vientiane, Laos, where the nerve ends of the cold war lie exposed—history's unlikeliest battleground.

Article Spreads Alarm

Europe Haunted By Resurgent German Militarism

By ALAIN de LYBET, from Paris

The ghost of German militarism has returned to haunt Europe and the West German government itself.

An underlying worry over the rebirth of German military power has been sharply revived by publication of an authoritative article charging that the Bundeswehr, the West German army, is "becoming a state within a state" and is "being trained in the old military spirit."

The fact that the author of the article is Hellmuth Heye, the man appointed by the West German government to be the watchdog over the democratic behavior of the Bundeswehr, has brought considerable alarm to his criticism.

Heye, a retired vice admiral, is inspector general of the Bundeswehr. He published his accusations in the mass-circulation picture magazine, Quick, after declaring that he could not make his voice heard in the West German parliament or among officers of the Bundeswehr. His stated intention was to alarm public opinion.

He has alarmed all of Western Europe.

His article came after recent trials in which officers and non-commissioned officers were found guilty of mistreating recruits.

While his accusations were aimed only at the way the Bundeswehr is being run and at the fact that officers "have no true respect for democratic elements," his article has revived wider apprehensions in Europe.

His attacks have been embarrassing to the Bonn government, which has tended to minimize them.

Trusteeship Asked For City

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—The Quebec municipal commission will soon ask for a trusteeship to be imposed on the city of LaFleche for non-payment of debts, the municipal affairs ministry announced Thursday.

The city of LaFleche is in the Greater Montreal area. The petition for trusteeship follows the auditing of books of the city by two investigators of the municipal affairs department.

Nationalize Telephones MP Urges Commons

OTTAWA (UPI)—Conservative Louis Joseph Pigeon urged Thursday that Bell Telephone Company of Canada be nationalized to do away with "an even bigger monopoly than Khrushchev controls."

As a start, Mr. Pigeon (Joliette-L'Assomption-Montcalm) said the federal charter of the company should be "completely revised and brought up to date."

Pointing to the Bell's revenue of $68,000,000, Mr. Pigeon called it the "biggest and most powerful monopoly in the world—a state within a state."

"It has no competition whatever, and it is in the public interest for provinces to nationalize it as soon as possible," Mr. Pigeon said.

He was speaking on a private member's bill to increase the directors of the company from 15 to 20.

Liberal Lloyd Francis (Charlton) described Mr. Pigeon's words as "nothing short of blackmail."

"This is a despicable attack on a thoroughly reputable organization," Mr. Francis said. "I for one am not going to sit back and allow this kind of irresponsible, ultra-nationalistic and socialistic thought to be placed on the record without a protest."

Mr. Pearson said he hopes to bring it forward as soon as the Commons complete debate on the flag and anthem resolutions and the constitutional amendment for the Canada Pension Plan.

Richard R. Southern (PC—Moose Mountain) asked whether Mr. Pearson considers the flag question more important than the student loans program.

Mr. Pearson retorted that he realizes Mr. Southern would be happy to have the prime minister "rescue him and his party from the dilemma of the flag."

Ed Nassef (PC—Northern) asked when farm improvement loans and Crop Insurance Act amendments will come before the House. As soon as the priority legislation is completed, replied Mr. Pearson.

A Bit Flashy But Sturdy

REGINA (CP)—It weighs 100 pounds and it flashes.

It's a distinctive Canada flag designed by Regina artist, Ted Godwin.

The flag stands on steel legs and is made up of neon lights.

The design is of a single maple leaf, vertical blue bars on the edges and 10 lights surrounding the maple leaf and representing the 10 provinces of Canada.

The color and intensity of the 10 lights can be varied with the changing fortunes

Changes with national mood and moods of the provinces, says Godwin, who has the flag in front of his home. Blue can signify a time of disaster for a province and gold a time of economic buoyancy.

The single maple leaf represents Canadian unity.

The flag flashes on and off at variable speed. "Flow in time of peace and fast in war to keep the national anger up," Godwin says.

"Any flag is good as long as you believe in it," he adds. "This one is contemporaneous with the times—the age of electronics."

Ever try "slow" gin?

(And we don't mean Sloe Gin.)

"Slow" gin and Sloe Gin sound the same. But they couldn't be more different. Sloe Gin, flavoured with sloe, is on the sweet side. Our "slow" gin—Burnett's Sterling—is very, very dry.

Why do we call it a "slow" gin? Because we make it slowly. Instead of being mass-produced in oceans—like most other gins on the market—Sterling is distilled in small, unhurried batches.

What sets the slow pace is our little English copper Pot Still, which are more than 100 years old. By modern standards, they are minuscule—and slowpokes.

But as long as you like the way they make gin, we're in no hurry to change them. Look at the one on the left. We brought it here from England in the 1920's, when we imported Burnett's complete distillery. The men who mind our old Pot Still know them as a good cook knows his seasoned pots and pans. They'd never forgive us if we decided to retire these old-timers. Switching to modern, monster stills would save us trouble, time and money. But our Sterling Gin would no longer be a "slow" gin. And you'd be quick to tell us that it didn't taste the same.

He Rode Horse Into a Harem

NEW DELHI (AP)—He has ridden a horse into a harem, fired a 31-gun salute in honor of a girl, and become a combat hero and soldier-diplomat. This is Gen. K. S. Thimayya, India's most famous soldier, who has been asked to assume command of the United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus.

Thimayya fought bandit tribesmen on the old Northwest Frontier, opposed the Japanese in the Second World War, and earned an international reputation for honesty and fairness as director of prisoner repatriation during the Korean War.

JUNIOR OFFICER
The harem-on-a-horse bit came in 1927 when Thimayya was a junior officer in what then was the British-run Indian Army. He was given the job of helping protect the palace of Iraqi King Faisal I in Baghdad. He told American author Humphrey Evans about it:

"I suddenly heard some female shrieks. Without thinking, I galloped into the palace grounds. I had a vague idea of rescuing damsels in distress."

ESCAPE ARAB SWORDS

Thimayya and his horse narrowly escaped the swords of the harem's Arab guards.

Thimayya, 58, says it was luck that his escapade did not finish his military career before it got started. Using ceremonial guns to salute a girl acquaintance could have finished him off, he says.

HIGHLY REGARDED
But Thimayya compiled an enviable combat record starting with the Indian Army's campaign against the north-west Second World War broke out he was highly regarded by the British. They chose him as the first Indian to command a brigade.

Heavily decorated by the British after campaigns against the Japanese in Burma, Thimayya stayed in the army when India became independent in 1947.

BIG JOB

His first big job was helping stamp out Hindu-Muslim religious rioting that killed hundreds of thousands of persons in northwest India.

In 1948 he commanded India's forces against Muslim tribesmen in the fight for the Himalayan state of Kashmir.

HEADS COMMISSION
In 1953, he got the job that made him an international figure—chairman of the neutral nations repatriation commission which had the task of returning to their homelands prisoners taken by Communist and United Nations forces.

Dismaster for India and Thimayya struck in 1962 when the Communist Chinese attacked along India's northern frontiers. Thimayya argued bitterly with the then defence minister, V. K. Krishna Menon, on how to counter Chinese attacks. Thimayya, at one point submitted his resignation but Prime Minister Nehru persuaded him to refrain command.

However, Nehru did not extend Thimayya's term as chief of army staff, as he did a few months later for the air force and navy chiefs of staff, and Thimayya retired.

On Cyprus, he replaces Indian Gen. P. S. Gyani who is reported to have requested retirement.

New High-Rise Rising Near Empress Hotel

A seven-storey apartment building, to be known as the Queen Victoria, is under construction near the Empress Hotel.

Rock blasting started yesterday at the site of the $1,000,000 building being erected by Paterson Construction for Peter Hartnell and Vincent Patterson, principals of Carmel Holdings.

In addition to the seven storeys, there will be two floors for parking for the occupants of the 23 suites.

The building, erected on a sloping site at the corner of Blanshard and Douglas, should be open in June next year.

A rooftop restaurant may be added, according to Mr. Hartnell, but no decision has been made.

Architects are Peterson and Lester.

Jordan River Mill to Open By July 31

By HARRY YOUNG (Colonist Business Editor)

The "business" way into the Cowichan Copper Company mill and mine at Jordan River is still blocked by rock and silt, but president Ousle McDonald told me Thursday that he had completed a personal check of the different working levels and the mill by climbing down ladders from the spot where the Jordan River broke through last December.

Mr. McDonald hopes the mill may be in operation by the end of July. Electricians are working on the water damaged generators and motors, and some low voltage power is now available.

The trouble leading to the portal has been completed, and work on clearing the tunnel from both ends has begun.

The firm's contract with Japanese smelters has been cancelled and Mr. McDonald says he is negotiating with potential buyers from Europe.

One of the parties is British Metals Corporation which would buy at London Metal Exchange prices. Mr. McDonald says these are higher than the New York prices and might mean an extra $1,000,000 a year to Cowichan. Others bidding for Cowichan concentrates are from Holland, Germany, Belgium, France and Italy.

New financing for the mine and mill has not yet been arranged and the bills for the rehabilitation work are being borne by Mr. McDonald himself.

"We would have arranged the loan, but the terms asked were too stiff. We are not going to be panicked into buying money at any price," said Mr. McDonald.

TEXAS GETS BUNY

Texas Gulf Sulphur reports it has received assays from 17 drill holes on its Timmins property and now estimates its ore at 35,000,000 tons. Earlier estimate was in the 20-30,000,000 range.

Texas Gulf says it will get the property into production without delay. A 6,000-ton mill is planned, and later the company hopes to set up its own smelter operation in the area.

NEW TIMMINS STRIKE

Another copper strike was reported Wednesday from the hot Timmins area.

Genex Mines which has property west of the Texas Gulf Sulphur property, says a drill core 19.7 feet long has been assayed at $27.50 a ton copper value. The mineralization was found 318 feet below the surface.

Bunker Hill, another mining company in the Timmins area, says it has drawn a blank with its first drill hole and is preparing to sink a second.

BILL RATE UP

The yield on the 91-day government treasury bills rose Thursday to 3.58 per cent compared with the year's low of 3.53 per cent a week ago.

LESS FROM COPPER

Mechanical and other difficulties combined to give Bethlehem Copper a smaller profit in the financial quarter ended May 31. Net profit for the period was $641,961 (14.4 cents a share) compared with $716,797 (16.9 cents) in the corresponding quarter of 1963.

A report by consulting engineer J. A. C. Ross says the difficulties are being overcome and production during the latter part of 1964 will be higher than normal with the grade rising to 1.15 per cent copper.

The first shipment of molybdenum from the mine was made June 5, according to H. H.

COSTLY BOTTLE CHANGE

It cost Interior Breweries Ltd. $37,000 to change over from the old to the new stubby beer bottles, and this expenditure was responsible for a drop in the net profit for the year ended March 31 to $24,628 from $28,163 in the previous year.

Sales at $2,400,000 were up five per cent.

PIPELINE APPROVED

The Alberta government has approved the construction of a $4,000,000 oil pipeline to connect the recently discovered Lesser Slave Lake field with the Interprovincial Pipe Line at Redwater.

The application was made by Imperial Oil, Home Oil and Standard Oil of California, three of the main participants in the Lesser Slave Lake field.

VAUZE SHARES SOLD

Consolidated Zinc Corporation has sold its 1,830,600 shares of Vauze Mines Limited at 71 cents a share to J. P. Sheridan and Graham H. Duff, who have taken up the management of the company.

Zinc Corporation held 50.02 per cent of Vauze stock, and Sheridan and Duff have undertaken within 30 days to make an offer of 71 cents a share to all the other shareholders of Vauze.

THE NOT HAPPY

The inquiry ordered by the Ontario attorney general into the financing activities of minor Canadian mining companies during the recent Timmins boom, has not been accepted merely by the Toronto Stock Exchange.

The exchange says it will assist in every way, but Marshall Stearns, chairman, regrets the choice of the present time to conduct an enquiry of this nature and feels it may adversely affect the ability of the small mining companies to raise further funds for development.

GAS DISCOVERED

British American Oil, Triad Oil, and Pamoli Ltd. have discovered natural gas about four miles north of the Carbon gas field near Drumheller, Alta.

The well, Hesteth 6.23, recorded a flow of up to 7,300,000 cubic feet a day.

BA owns 60 per cent and the others 20 per cent each.

ASSETS INCREASED

Assets of All-Canadian Funds have increased 25.6 per cent this year, with three fifths of the increase coming from appreciation of investments, and the remainder from new money invested.

Art Phillips, president, said assets now stood at $56,500,000.

Road Will Divide Newly-Bought Land

City council yesterday gave approval in principle to an expropriation bylaw for acquisition of an 80-foot strip of property running from Douglas to Burnside to be used for extension of Finlayson Street.

The strip runs through the centre of a 6½-acre property recently acquired by Newell Morrison, who intends to relocate his automobile agency there later this year.

Passage of the expropriation bylaw to this stage is council's usual first step before negotiating large purchases, because it clearly sets out the city's intentions and enables it to take control of the property regardless of disputes over price.

Expropriation is only finally carried out if there is no voluntary agreement, and then price is fixed by arbitration.

Legislation for Show

HANEY (CP) — The British Columbia government probably won't acquire more than five or 10 per cent of the shares of the proposed new Bank of British Columbia, says Premier Bennett.

He held a banquet meeting of Social Creditors in the Fraser Valley community Wednesday night that while the government had passed legislation permitting it to acquire up to 25 per cent of the bank's shares "we only did that to show the people of B.C. that the government had confidence in the new bank."

"In fact," he said, "the government probably won't buy more than five or 10 per cent of the shares."

The legislation to create the new bank, with a proposed $100,000,000 capitalization, now is under study by the banking and commerce committee of the Senate.

Referring to opposition expressed in the Senate to the bank bill, Mr. Bennett said:

"If the Senate wishes to say which Canadians should or should not be shareholders in a bank it should change the Bank Act—not our application."

Do You Get Sound INVESTMENT ADVICE?

Some "investors" buy securities on impulse, inside information and hot tips. Others take the advice of fortune-tellers.

Without commenting on such methods of building up an investment portfolio, we do know it is usually better to place your trust in solid painstaking research.

Changes in the prices of securities take place constantly. As a result, the task of selecting securities which combine safety of principal, good income and an opportunity for capital appreciation is sometimes difficult for investors. With this thought in mind our Research Department has prepared a group of balanced portfolios of varying sizes.

These portfolios include Government and Corporation Bonds in addition to well-seasoned, dividend-paying common shares. We suggest you will find it to your advantage to compare the composition of these portfolios with your present holdings. New investors may find them useful as a guide in preparing their own portfolios. You can obtain them without obligation. Just telephone or visit any of our offices or mail the coupon below. Even better, send us a list of securities you own which you would like us to review, and indicate your investment objective. We have been aiding investors, large and small for over 50 years and will be glad to help you plan a portfolio suited to your needs.

Arnold Palmer Humbles Washington Man-Eater

By WILL GRIMSLEY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Masters king Arnold Palmer humbled the monster course of the Congressional Country Club to his knees with a two-

Extension Given

One Week For Denver

Stafford Smythe, president of the Toronto Maple Leafs, is playing ball with Denver and with the game now going into extra innings, the odds dropped yesterday for Victorians hoping for a return to the Western Hockey League. Today was the stipulated deadline for Denver to have sold the 2,000 season tickets they were asked to retail as proof that the Toronto club wouldn't take the same kind of financial setback they took last season in sponsoring a WHL club in Denver. But Denver now has at least until next Thursday to convince Smythe that the club should remain there.

Reached by telephone yesterday in Toronto, Smythe told The Daily Colonist that he will fly to Denver next Thursday to make his decision.

"By then," he said, "I'll be able to assess the situation better."

He intimated that he felt that he had an obligation to give Denver every chance to meet the ticket quota imposed by the league. The extra week may not be a death blow to Victorians' hopes but the odds now have to be rated less than the even rating given by Smythe two weeks ago.

Valiant's Record Good for Fourth

EUGENE, Ore. — Victoria's John Valiant, running for Washington State University, finished fourth, but still managed to break the meet record for the 10,000 metres at the NCAA track and field championships here yesterday.

Danny Murphy won the race in a time of 29:37.5. Valiant's time was 29:57.2, over a minute better than the meet record of 31:15.3 set in 1956.

Harry Jerome of Vancouver, qualified for Oregon for the semi-final heats in the 100 and 200-metre runs, while another Canadian, Bob Yard, qualified for Washington State for the pole vault final.

Valiant and Victoria's Lynn Eves, who will run in Oregon State's quarter-mile relay team, are expected to take part in the Club to his knees with a two-under-par 68 Thursday for a two-stroke opening round lead in the United States open golf championship. The muscled capitalist from Latrobe, Pa., bidding for a professional grand slam, missed a birdie seven-foot putt on the final hole which would have given him a greater margin.

Palmer was the only player to crack the 35-37 per cent of the 7,063-yard, course and only one other — Bill Collins — matched it.

Collins, a six-foot-three tour regular whose career was almost ended by a back ailment last year, was alone in second place with a 70.

Defending champion Julius Boros shot a 77 and South Africa's Gary Player registered a disappointing 75.

Tony Lema, hottest man on the tour after two straight tournament triumphs, shot a 71 for a tie with long-hitting Johnny Pott and a little-known home pro from Modesto, Calif., Joe Zakarian.

SHED FAR BEHIND

Sarn Sneed, at 53 making his 21st bid for the title he's never won and the sentimental favorite of millions, four-notted the fourth hole and took three putts on the sixth in a collapse that ended his dreams quickly. He finished with a 77 and was in jeopardy of failing to make the cut Friday when the field is shaved in the low 50 and ties.

Jack Nicklaus, battling Palmer for world golf honors, registered a 72.

He was bracketed with more than a dozen at this figure, including the left-handed British Open champion from New Zealand, Bob Charles, Ken Venturi and Bruce Crampton of Australia.

STRANGE ROUND

Charles, a bean-pole of a man, had a rather bizarre round. He was five over par through the first five holes. Then he started turning on the steam at the eighth and closed with a back-nine 32. No one else played the back nine of Congressional's dreaded acres with such contempt.

FAN FARE

By Walt Dittus

This year's "Wimbledon" begins Monday. As always, overseas visitors accustomed to empty stands in their homelands will goggle again at long queues settling down with blankets and tea stoves on the cold stones outside the grounds 24 hours before unreserved seats and standing room go on sale.

They will be equally intrigued by the parade of debutantes and dowagers, all dressed in the British idea of high fashion and obviously present to see and be seen Palmer, driving badly on the front nine, found the range after the turn and also discovered an old putting touch which he said he feared he might never find again.

HOT PUTTING

He had only 26 putts and on none of the massive greens did he take three strokes.

Nicklaus, saying "I played awful," scrambled to keep under par through the first 15 holes. At that point, he said, "my sins caught up with me."

He hit his iron approach into the rough at the 16th, drove into the rough and failed to recover on the 17th. At the 18th he again drove into the rough—his eighth trip there in 14 driving holes—and missed a seven-foot putt needed for his par.

Tennis Drama...

There's Nothing Quite Like Wimbledon

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The first sign in Britain that summer is a coming in is not the piping of the cuckoo or the early primrose nodding above the forest floor.

It is a piteous newspaper advertisement that appears in the dead of winter, and it goes something like this:

"Seats wanted for Wimbledon."

Ticket brokers scanning the personal columns in bleak February know that if this phrase appears a profitable summer cannot be far behind. And, touched by the plea, they respond in the same columns with what is virtually their mating call:

"Centre court, Wimbledon. Best seats."

So the courtship proceeds as it has every year (wars excepted) since opportunists discovered in 1913 that the Wimbledon tournament was far more than merely tennis championships on grass but a social event firmly riveted into the debate calendar.

Eventually they meet, the seeker and the seller, and a sum of money well above the box office price changes hands. For it is one of the phenomena of the world of sport that Wimbledon continues a massive sellout year after year despite a sharp decline in the standard of play.

Few other sporting events can make this claim.

PHILLIES' HOMER HITTERS HELP GIANTS SLIDE GAME BEHIND

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two-run homers by rookie Danny Cater—his first homer in the majors — and veteran Johnny Phillips powered Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-3 victory over Chicago Cubs Thursday.

The Cubs, leading their first series since May 21, were beaten in the first three innings. Cater homered after Richie Allen beat out an infield hit in the first inning and Callison homered in the third after pitcher Chris Short singled.

The triumph boosted the Phillies' National League edge to one game over second-place San Francisco Giants, who lost 7-4 at St. Louis.

PHILLIES' HOMER HITTERS HELP GIANTS SLIDE GAME BEHIND

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two-run homers by rookie Danny Cater—his first homer in the majors — and veteran Johnny Phillips powered Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-3 victory over Chicago Cubs Thursday.

The Cubs, leading their first series since May 21, were beaten in the first three innings. Cater homered after Richie Allen beat out an infield hit in the first inning and Callison homered in the third after pitcher Chris Short singled.

The triumph boosted the Phillies' National League edge to one game over second-place San Francisco Giants, who lost 7-4 at St. Louis.

Little Boys Get Baseballs Back

CALGARY (CP) — Mrs. Anne Paliwoda of Calgary has been ordered to return two baseballs that fell in her backyard after being hit by little leaguers, but a charge of theft laid against her was dismissed.

Mrs. Paliwoda told magistrates this week that windows had been broken and other damage done to her home and property during the last few years.

The problem appeared again this summer when a Little League team held practices on a diamond 30 feet from her home.

After a player retrieved the first ball that fell in her yard, Mrs. Paliwoda kept a second.

The team manager complained and police were called. A second ball landed in her yard while she explained the situation to officers. She kept that one, too.

Mrs. Paliwoda denied a charge by the team manager that she didn't want the chil-

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Saltwater fishing reports from all over the Island indicate that salmon fishing is picking up everywhere and is good at some spots like Becher Bay and Qualicum.

Cold, miserable weather for this time of the year is helping to prolong the lake fishing season.

River fishing is not too lucrative, with some exceptions like the Chemainus for steelhead and the Cowichan River in the middle reaches for brown trout. Some sea-run cut-throat are being taken on fly and small spoons at river mouths.

Becher Bay has been the big news. They are catching some big springs there... up to 43½ pounds, and plenty in the 30-pound bracket. But fishing pressure has been terrific. If boats would establish a one-way fishing circle and then follow it, there would be less foul-ups.

Usual pattern at Becher is to come into Beechey Head, then follow along the wall and through the deep hole in an anti-clockwise circle. But there are always some sports who think they can sneak in for extra passes at the hot spots and they foul things up for everyone.

Early morning has been the best time and it is the usual pattern to find 20 or 30 boats at the Head when dawn is cracking.

Those who dredge the bottom have been getting best results. A little reminder to those so-called sportsmen who use a centre handline with a three to five-pound ball... Fish caught on that deep centre line are not eligible for the King Fishermen contest.

Only fish caught on rod and reel in sporting manner are acceptable.

Oak Bay has also been good for springs. In fact big springs are being taken in limited numbers all the way from Port Renfrew, through Sooke, Becher, Albert Head, William Head, Victoria waterfront, Oak Bay, James Island Sidney, to Deep Cove waters.

Saanich Inlet hasn't been too hot, although some are being taken, in the Indian Bay-Coles Bay area. Findlayson Arm started giving up some good fishing at mid-week. Needlefish around Mill Bay, Patricia Bay and Deep Cove have appeared to be holding fish back from the Inlet.

There is good blueback fishing in Portlier Pass and the Five Fingers area of Nanaimo.

A southeaster blowing at Northwest Bay in mid-week should mean good fishing in the Lantzville-Northwest Bay-Qualicum waters... maybe the best of the year.

In the Qualicum-French Creek waters the springs and coho are both providing fun for bucktailers.

Bates Beach, north of Courtenay, is now producing springs and blues.

Campbell River is hitting its stride for the coho fishing. "The coho are fat and easy and are right out in front along the kelp beds," says Rita Corbett.

"Springs have been fairly plentiful for this time of year," says Corky Corbett.

The lakes are probably still the best bets for sure catches of fish... any lake.

"You will see by the King Fishermen entries that Cowichan Lake is holding up well," writes Peter Edwards. "There have been many more under the one pound limit. Goat Island has been best spot... Fly fishermen have found fair fishing at Marble Bay.

Stan Ross reports that at Great Central Lake fishing is good from eight miles up the lake to the top end, with trout up to five pounds being taken on various-colored flatfish.

Battle Lake, especially at the mouths of the various streams, has been pretty good. Upper Campbell and Lower Campbell are still producing well.

Quennell Lake, in the Cedar district south of Nanaimo, is giving up some fairly hot bass fishing as well as trout fishing. Elk, Beaver and Prospect Lakes in the Victoria area are also good for trout and bass.

Eight Teams in Battle

Baseball Tourney for $1,000

Eight teams have taken dead aim on $1,000 prize money offered for a tournament here July 3-5 sponsored by Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball Association.

Two local teams are entered for the tournament, planned for Royal Athletic Park.

The Victoria Amateur Baseball Association is sponsoring the tournament with money it has made through numerous dances and raffles. The association would also like to think that it will make enough at the gate to break even.

Teams from Courtenay-Cumbarland, Duncan-Ladysmith, Vancouver-O'Keefe, Haney-Hammond, Port Moody and the Vancouver Industrial League will compete for the first prize of $500. Second place is worth $300 and third and fourth $100 each.

Jim Moody will manage one

Victoria team with Barry Omdor handling the catching chores, Art Worth at first base, Barry Harvey at second, Stu Mitchell at third and John Yankoni at shortstop.

George Brice, Brent Siddons and George Holt are the pitchers, and Norm Curran, Gary Tuttle, Mike Hodge, Larry McKinstry, Larry Johnston and Dave Rivers will look after the outfield and utility work.

The other Victoria club has

Herb Wetherall at the helm with Jay Rawlings, Ron Grant and Bob Lumley slated for catching duties. Ken Gregory is at first base, Bill Hobbins at second, Larry Montgomery at third and Bob Holmes at shortstop.

Doing the pitching are Dan Moseley, Nick Klinick, Stan Thame, Cliff Rutledge and Steve Bishop. And Tom Moore, Gary Bishop, Dallas Lansdell, Dave Rees and Bud Taylor fill the outfield-utility slots.

Five-Run Rally By Independents

Independents trailed 3-2 going into the inning, but took advantage of two walks and an error and whacked out three base hits.

Bad Brice uncorked the big blow with a two-run single with the bases loaded.

The win edged Independents into a half-game first-place lead over Transport Workers in the standings.

Greaves... 1st and 2nd... 5... 3

George Holt, Dave Jones (1) and Jay Hastings, George Brice and Ron Grant.

Independents staged a five-run seventh-inning uprising to come from behind to beat Greaves 7-5 in a Senior Amateur Baseball League contest at Royal Athletic Park last night.

Seven Victorians are among a field of 63 golfers who will tee off Sunday in men's mid-island championship at the Vancouver Island Golf Club in Nanaimo.

Making the trip are C. Byron A. McMillan, M. Allum, G. White, M. Warawa, and W. Schlievert from Gorge Vale and Ricky Kent from Colwood.

Garden Notes

Edging Trick Simple

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRES

One problem spot that can mar the appearance of an otherwise well-groomed garden is that bit where the flower beds join the lawn. The edges are always breaking down—particularly if you have elephant-hoofed children like mine—making little bays and indentations in what should be a trim, straight edge. Vigorous grass, too, has a habit of pushing out advancing columns into the richer soil of the flower bed, and is impossible to maintain any degree of neatness with such serrated edges.

The conventional method of dealing with this problem is to cut a new edge to the bed a few inches back from the original border, and the ideal implement for this work is the half-moon edging iron. This works fine for a while, but you can't keep enlarging the flower bed indefinitely, or pretty soon you'll have all bed and no lawn.

One of Canada's truly great gardeners, the late W. R. Reader, Parks Superintendent in Calgary, once showed me a simple little trick whereby you can put a new edge to a flower bed without losing any lawn area.

His method was to cut and lift a 12-inch strip of sod along the edge of the bed, which isn't nearly as difficult as it sounds. He would turn this strip back to front and lay it again with the clean-cut, straight edge facing the flower bed and the broken, irregular portion facing back into the lawn.

It was a simple matter then to fill up the holes with a little soil taken from the bed, scatter a pinch or two of grass seed and pat it down with the back of the spade. In no time at all the wounds will have healed, the edges of the grass knitted together, and everything is shipshape again.

Such a major operation need only be performed once every couple of years, and in between times the edges can be trimmed in the usual way with the edging iron. There is a right and a wrong way, though, of doing even this simple job.

Stretch a strong cord first between two stakes, for you can't rely on the accuracy of your eye to cut a perfectly straight edge. Don't attempt to cut along the line of the cord, however, for it will sag as you work, and the pressure of the tool against the string will bulge it inward, resulting in a bow-fronted edge.

Instead, use an old plank — the heavier the better — as a cutting guide, using the taut cord to position it correctly, and do your cutting with the blade of the half-moon edging iron pressed snugly against the edge of the plank. The implement should be kept razor-sharp by dressing the edge occasionally with a file, for a dull edge is bound to do a sloppy job.

The natural tendency in using an edging iron is to make your cuts vertical—straight up and down—and this cliff-face edge DOES, in fact, give the neatest appearance. However, such an edge tends to crumble easily with any foot traffic near it, and a better plan is to slope your cuts outward slightly, giving a broader base and more support to the edge of the grass.

Even with a neatly cut edge, we still have the problem of straggly tufts of grass along the lawn edge, which must be trimmed by hand with the grass shears. One good way to reduce this work is to edge the flower bed with bricks or flat square stones or concrete slabs, set in level with the lawn so that one wheel of the lawn mower can ride on the bricks while mowing the edge.

May I remind my readers that the annual summer show of the Victoria Horticultural Society will be opening this afternoon at the Victoria Curling Rink, 1952 Quadra Street. The hours are 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. today and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. tomorrow, and the admission charge is 50 cents. This is undoubtedly the most important flower show of the summer season, and my spies tell me that the rose display alone will be well worth the admission charge.

A new feature of the show is a lecture this afternoon at 3 on the care and feeding of roses, by Mr. Fred Blakeney, creator of the Centennial rose. Tomorrow at 3 p.m. there will be a demonstration of flower arranging by Mrs. Theo Wiggan.

Look Gives Love Away

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—It is a columnist's privilege to change her mind: I have changed mine about whether Margaret Leighton will marry Michael Wilding. Now I think they very well might. What made me change my mind? It was seeing them with that unmistakable look, at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel yesterday evening. And whether they marry or not, it is very obvious they have been having a romance.

Natalie Wood has a crush on Mope Lange's brother David. Until a few weeks ago David was houseguesting with Arthur Lowe Jr., who until a few weeks ago was engaged to Miss Wood.

Everyone is singing these days and petite star Bony Schneider will be joining the sing-a-long—If David Merrick is successful in persuading her to star in his musical version of Roman Holiday. Gene Kelly will direct and David, who is a great persuader, may get him to star as well. Anna Maria Albergotti would like to star in this show that won an Oscar for Audrey Hepburn as a movie. But she is also interested in playing the leading lady in the musical version of Brave New World which her fiancée Charles Gorman is directing. Rehearsals start in October.

Jim Mithum and Vince Edwards' former girl friend, Sherry Nelson, enjoy motoring together and they are motoring from New York to Los Angeles.

Ian Fleming's new book, You Only Live Twice, will make him another million dollars—before taxes of course. The film rights will be bought by producers Cubby Broccoli and Harry Saltzman who will soon be starting their fourth James Bond thriller—On His Majesty's Service. I am delighted with Ian's success. He is one of the most charming people I have ever met.

Since her "marriage" to Mark Herron, Judy Garland's estranged mate, Sid Luft, has been in constant consultation with his lawyers. Subject: Another court appearance to demand the custody of his children with Judy.

Hugh Hefner, the boy who owns Playboy, has his sights set on motion picture and television production. At one time Tony Curtis was set to star in his movie biography, but that seems to have been abandoned. As a start in the motion picture tycoon direction, Hefner has bought a movie house in Chicago. And of course renamed it the Playboy Theatre. And of course the usherettes will be bunnies.

Shari Lewis, a tiny size three—that's a baby size, had designer Ann Bohren make special stretch slacks for her to wear in her new sexy-girl night club act. That popular, rather plump, TV personality, was poured out of Sardi's East one evening last week in New York. If she keeps it up she will drink herself out of her career.

Question: Did Orson Welles ever finish his movie on Don Quixote? (He's been at it for five years with Akim Tamiroff playing Sancho Panza.) And if so when will it be released? The man who plays Quixote is an elderly Spanish actor and he keeps writing wistfully to Akim for news of the film. He wants to be still with us when and if it is released.

JACK SMITH Defends Slanglais

French Purity Sullied

The French are excited again over the supposed corruption of their language by American slang.

Now a Prof. Rene Etienne, of the Sorbonne, has published a book called Parlez-vous Franglais?

The professor cites 5,000 words that have already breached the Maginot Line of the French vocabulary and are now said to be defiling the purity of the language like so many Hunns loose among the maidens of a Norman village.

Among the invading barbarianisms Prof. Etienne lists such expressions as "blue jeans," "awank," "week-end" and "best seller," and he warns that if the influx isn't stemmed the elegant and graceful instrument of Moliere, Hugo, La Rochefoucauld and Proust will be extinct in 40 years.

This word is deplorable indeed. The end of the French language is no more to be wished than the end of French cheeses. But Prof. Etienne's anguished prophecy struck me as an old hat—the chapeau ancien, to coin a phrase. It was like hearing Maurice Chevalier sing Isn't It Romantic? I was sure I'd heard it before.

Sure enough, back in my files I found that five years ago L'Office de Vocabulaire Francaise voiced the same complaint, noting with horror the popularity of such Americanisms as "gangster," "blackout," "holdup," "sex appeal," "cover girl," "strip tease" and "grill room."

This seemed then, and still does, a false alarm and the height of academic prudery. The French, or any other European people, should be delighted to have their decadent language revitalized by the vigor and inventiveness of the American strain.

I'd like to invite Prof. Etienne, as I invited L'office, to write this in French: "The cover girl who did the strip tease in the blackout had sex appeal. She was a knock-out."

I don't know what the professor would come up with, but I worked it up out of my wife's French-English dictionary and got this: "La fille sur le couvert qui a tourmenté par se de poulant sans le tout-coup noir avait se qu'il faut. Elle était un coup de marteau dehors."

If you translate that back into English you get this: "The girl on the cover who teased by taking off her clothes in the sudden black had what is required. She was a knock on the door outside."

Funny thing: L'office de Vocabulaire Francaise never paid any attention to me. I suppose Prof. Etienne won't either.

But it will serve the French right if some of our worst expressions float back across the Atlantic to embarrass them. Some of them are nothing but translations of French expressions that floated over here in the first place.

For example, that monarch of American banalities, "and how?" is nothing but the French "et comment?" Similarly, "you're telling me" comes from "tu qui le dis vous" and "let George do it" from "laissez faire a Georges."

On the other hand, let's be grateful to the French for "blonde," "decolletage," "divorce," "derriere" and "champagne." What if we cut those out of the language? It would certainly take the joy out of vivre.

Those Were the Days

HAL BOYLE

Forget now.

There's always time to worry about it later.

Remember when—

A girl who wore mascara at a dance usually was planning to leave town anyway.

Anybody who claimed he had tasted both champagne and caviar was regarded as a sophisticate—or suspected of being a braggart.

Small girls carried their coins knotted in the end of a handkerchief.

Every ambitious man's goal was to found a small business of his own—and then make it grow bigger.

Men worked so hard they worried more about their feet than women do now. They took off their shoes at every opportunity.

A big spender was a guy who bought 10-cent cigars on paydays instead of the usual six-for-a-quarter brand; a sport was a fellow who could light a kitchen match with his thumbnail instead of striking it on the seat of his pants.

A well-to-do family in a small town had one dog; a poor family had two; a shiftless family might have up to half a dozen.

A banker would have thought you were out of your head if you asked for a personal loan in order to go on a vacation trip. People borrowed money only to finance a home mortgage or to keep a farm or business going.

The thing most people feared most was winding up in the poorhouse in their old age.

Only the rich could afford ulcers. Common folk merely had "a bad stomach," which they doctored usually with patent medicines prescribed by the local druggist.

The country had more barns than garages.

The best known form of automation was the penny gum machine.

No comedian was really funny unless he wore baggy pants, a comic hat, a big-checked coat, and told dialect stories.

Parents thought that a schoolteacher who spared the rod spoiled the child.

Instead of watching television, most wives spent their evenings restfully darning the socks of their menfolks.

Those were the days! Remember?

Fuel economy is engineered into every Mercury outboard.
 The small-bore, short-stroke design is one of the reasons we can do it.

The small cylinders in a Merc are more efficient in converting fuel into useful energy than the big cylinders found in other outboards. Harmful pre-ignition is minimized because the combustion is more easily controlled in the small cylinders. Not so in "big-bore" outboards. Merc's Power-Dome combustion chambers boost the power and further reduce fuel consumption.

Mercs tolerate a greater degree of spark advance which is necessary for maximum fuel efficiency at cruising speeds. This makes Merc's fuel economy linkage more effective than those on competitors' "big-bore" out-boards. Merc's fixed-jet carburetors and balanced intake manifold improve fuel economy even more by metering out the exact amount of fuel an engine needs at any speed.

Merc's lower unit design and Jet-Prop exhaust reduce underwater drag... giving you more efficient power at the prop. You get maximum mileage from every drop of fuel that you use.

Mercs will consistently give you more miles per gallon and more miles per hour than competitor outboards. Your

plus 20 years

Eleventh of a Series:
 Conversation with Eisenhower—the intimate story of the great invasion of Europe
 in June, 1944

WALTER CRONKITE: Until you can get your communications in from companies to battalions, from battalions to regiments, and regiments to division, there's not much a higher commander can do. Because he just doesn't know what's going on. The platoon leader or the squad leader, sometimes a private, they do it and your whole attack starts to move. These are the natural leaders coming to the fore, and that's what happens in a confused situation like this.

GEN. EISENHOWER: Omaha Beach was the one where we ran into real resistance. Of all the attacks, that was the worst one. That was the one that worried us all day long.

The men were taking cover behind anything they could find, sometimes behind vehicles that had been disabled. They would be in little bunches. And finally they would have to move because the tide was coming in.
 The tide comes in very rapidly, you know, and it rises more than 20 feet. So they were in danger of drowning. They got up finally, a few here, a few there, under fire all the time.
 Some hardly would just start and take a little group, and they'd get up. A few men would start going forward, and the natural leaders began to lead the groups up. There would be a lieutenant, maybe a private, leading by example, saying,
 "Come on, boys," and they'd go.
 And pretty soon they would get a little infiltration. Later they would begin to flank out. By evening they had gotten a considerable distance inland.

It has to be your local commanders who get things started.

Beach Plugged

During the course of the day, this beach got so plugged up that the beachmaster (the man who had the essential task of directing and regulating the traffic into the beach) had to tell the LCIs (landing craft, infantry) and LCTs (landing craft, tank) coming in that they would have to circle offshore. The craft were like milling cattle out there, get-

Two young fellows in com-

 little sick of the whole thing.

Not a General's Battle

—GIs Won Omaha

Canadians House-Clearing

milling around, you know.
 Now that the tide was up at full, they decided to take a chance and come right in over the obstacles with their two boats. They had quite a few guns on the landing craft. So they came in, firing straight ahead. This gave fire support to the people who were pinned down on the beach; it also gave them some moral support. And the troops on the beach picked themselves up and started moving up and inland.

Fired from Boats

One of the boats was sunk almost immediately, but the other one made it. They were little LCTs, but they had guns in the front, 40-millimetre cannons, small ones, and 50-calibre machine guns, and they were just firing with everything they had, and they gave the troops on the beach a great boost.

Now because of the unsatisfactory reports I was getting in the early afternoon, I ordered out a destroyer—I was at Portsmouth, England—and Admiral Ramsey (commanding the Allied Naval Expeditionary Force) and I decided to come over here. The beach we picked to come to first was Omaha because we knew there was still some trouble there. We got offshore a mile or so, and there was some shooting going on, a shell occasionally coming toward us.

 We were pretty close to shore, and we got in touch with Omar Bradley (in charge of the American ground troops in the invasion). He came aboard, and we talked to him. Then we went over to see (Maj. Gen. J. Lawton) Collins—who commanded the VII Corps landing on Utah Beach. Then we turned around and shot right down towards the British beaches, where everything was already pretty well tidied up.

No Withdrawal

Was there any consideration during D-Day that this beach might have to be abandoned and the troops withdrawn?

O. no, I don't think so. No. It would have been impossible to have brought these people back and try to re-embark them on their ships that day.

What General Bradley was doing was studying the possibility of taking his follow-up troops who wouldn't be able to come in at Omaha because of the fire and the congestion on the beaches. He thought of sending them into Utah Beach, even possibly into the British zone, then cutting around the whole area of Omaha and relieving the pressure on the troops who were on that beach.

But about the time he was thinking it might be necessary, maybe along about noon, we began to have these individual acts of heroism, leadership at its very acme. You know, a fellow starts off for that high ground, and he gets two or three men to follow him. He soon has 20 or 30 and in time he gets some real power, and things begin to loosen up. And that's the way it happened.

It was not a general's battle, after all. We had done all the planning. We had drawn the best plan in order to save the most lives and get the most benefit.

But these were the people who had to do the job, and they did it. We must never forget them, the GI and his squad, platoon, and company leaders. They were the ones who made the plans work.

NEXT: Still at Omaha Beach, Gen. Eisenhower describes the objectives that drove the Allied fighting men to victory: "Not to conquer any territory, not for any addition of our own...
 But... so that the world could be free."

Register 'Over 70s' Government Told

OTTAWA (CP)—Compulsory registration with provincial health departments of all persons aged 70 and over was urged Thursday by a witness before the special Senate committee on aging.

Dr. Cope W. Schwenger of Toronto, member of a delegation from the Anglican Church of Canada which presented a brief to the committee, said Canada's provincial health departments should become "more old-age orientated."

"They should register all people of 70 and over, and a visit should be made by department welfare workers at the time each person reaches 70." People would be registered at 70 in the same way that all births in the provinces are recorded.

Dr. Schwenger, an associate professor of public health at the University of Toronto, said that keeping such a register and visiting each elderly person would enable health departments to assess living conditions, financial situations and the general health of the aged. Follow-up visits could be made if necessary and if the individual requested them.

The Anglican Church brief, among other recommendations, said legal advice should be available to elderly people to protect them from being pressured by salesmen into paying for "unnecessary and expensive house repairs, hearing aids, glasses and cemetery plots."

Romanian Reactor?

LONDON (UPI) — British officials said yesterday they favor moves to modify Western embargo regulations so that a nuclear reactor could be sold to Communist Romania.

The government turned down a request that it stop the sale of more than 1,000 trucks and bus chassis to Indonesia, whose guerrillas have been fighting British and other Commonwealth troops in Malaysian Borneo.

South African Envoy Mobbed

OXFORD, England (AP)—Fist fights broke out at Oxford University Wednesday night as 300 student demonstrators gathered to protest South Africa's racial policies.

Dr. Carel de Wet, South African ambassador, was half dragged from the Oxford University Conservative Association quarters to his car by a 10-man police bodyguard. He had just finished speaking to the association.

The speech was interrupted by chants of "Free Mandela" and "Go home, de Wet" from the street outside.

Nelson Mandela has been sentenced to life in prison in South Africa for sabotage. On the way out of Oxford, de Wet's car stopped because of a flat tire. Some students said they had stuck a match into the tire valve.

Students in pursuing cars jumped onto the ambassador's limousine and tried to drag the chauffeur out. But police arrived and arrested four students for breach of the peace. Other students tried to invade the police station, but the police drove them off. De Wet got away to London after the tire was changed.

UN Assails Apartheid

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations Security Council condemned South Africa's policy of race separation (apartheid) once again Thursday and decided on an 8½-month study of possible measures to force an end to it.

A Bolivian-Norwegian compromise resolution against apartheid was adopted, 8 to 0. France, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union abstained.

Aguilar Heads Labor Group

GENEVA (AP) — Ambassador Andres Aguilar of Venezuela was elected by acclamation as president of the annual conference of the International Labor Organization (ILO). The only other candidate for the post, Hashim Raza of Pakistan, withdrew to "preserve the unity of the developing countries."

What is a father?

To a boy a father is sometimes two huge hands. They put worms on hooks better than any other hands in the world.

A father is the man who sits at the head of the table. Someone nice to be near when there's thunder and lightning . . . or trouble.

A father understands when a boy thinks he's too old to be kissed goodnight. He is the one who teaches a son how to knot a tie, who buys a young man his first razor, who gives permission to take the car.

A father spends most of his life reaching into his pocket for money to give someone for something. His favourite words are, "Now when I was your age . . ."

A father is the person boys want to be like when they grow up. He can be ignored, but he can never be forgotten. A father is a small boy grown taller and wiser.

A good father's wisdom is shown in many ways. And not small among them is his practice of moderation in all things, including the use of whisky. On the occasion of Father's Day, 1964, The House of Seagram says once again: True happiness springs from Moderation.

For Bad Freeway Drivers

Pine Box Top Prize

The daredevil is worse than the jockey and the jockey is worse than the dreamer—but they're all dangerous when the Freeway Olympics is the event and human life the prize.

The B.C. Automobile Association has broken down some of the competitors in the Freeway Olympics and given them points, the more points the deadlier:

● The daredevil charges recklessly into freeway or highway traffic from a side street, secure in the belief everyone will give way. They won't: give this one the maximum 10 points.

● The lane-switcher can't bear to stay in one lane and can't bother to signal—he's a 10-pointer, too.

● The speeder and his opposite number, the slowpoke, add up to 19 points, 10 for the first and nine for the second. The difference is in the impact.

● The jockey can't stand to be outmanoeuvred and sets freeway traffic into fits and starts: nine for him.

● The tailgater gets nine more points. This chummy fellow loves to nuzzle up close, worries and annoys everyone, and can be called the inventor of the rear-end collision.

● The dreamer drives along mechanically while he ponders "more important" matters and escapes with eight points only because he does most of his damage to himself.

● Mr. Casual is draped all over the place, one arm over the wheel, the other clutching the roof. Sometimes he gets relief by putting an arm along the top of the seat. This nuisance earns six points.

● The gawker earns another six because his eyes are everywhere except on the road ahead.

● The social butterfly is the last on the BCAA list, which comes more types are around, and is worth six points particularly because he loves to wave his arms while making a conversational point.

The reward for these point totals, says the BCAA, is a pine box—the ultimate fate of every bad driver.

Almost-Flag Tried Out By Youths

Canada's new almost-flag was tried out early yesterday at the legislative buildings—but only for three youths and two policemen. Police say they received a telephone complaint about 1:40 a.m. when three youths were seen near the buildings. They say they attended and found the three maple leaf bunting—made from bedclothes—had been run up the pole. It was lowered with some difficulty, officers say. They cautioned the young men and sent them home.

Court Parade

Horning In Costs $20

A young man who blew his car horn five times near a Salvation Army outdoor service "for a joke" was told he had not been very funny yesterday by Magistrate William Ostler, who fined him $20.

Arnold White, 1206 Fairfield, pleaded guilty to using his horn unnecessarily and gave no reason for doing so.

Victoria's lighthouse philosopher, W. A. Scott, was not in a philosophical mood yesterday when he appeared before Magistrate Ostler charged with failing to stop for a red light.

Mr. Scott pleaded not guilty to the charge and will face trial July 2. He said in court yesterday that over the past several years he has spent $3,000 "proving the police wrong—and I'm getting weary of it."

A 16-year-old boy, transferred to adult court, pleaded guilty yesterday to assaulting a 15-year-old June 5 and will be sentenced June 25.

William Murray admitted he beat and kicked the other boy in Stadacona Park because he had heard earlier the victim had called him a "name."

The injured boy suffered a cut face which required three stitches to close.

The youth was released on his own bond until sentence as he said he would miss high school examinations if held in custody.

Two youths were each fined $30 in Saanich court after pleading guilty to possession of liquor while minors.

Richard White, 6473 Central Saanich, and Larry Quayle, 4555 Viewmont, admitted possession of beer and liquor while at the Tillicum Outdoor Theatre recently. Both are 18.

Belmont Park Recreation Forms Out

Registration forms for the Belmont Park summer recreation program have gone out to families of children in that area and will be collected on Saturday.

For one dollar, children over seven can participate in a daily program of games and sports from July 13 until the end of the summer holiday.

Supervision is provided by teen-agers trained in leadership by HMCN Naden's physical and recreational training staff.

It is expected that 300 of the district's 500 children will be enrolled.

$4,200,000 Project To Save Subs

REDLANDS, Calif. (AP)—The navy has awarded a $4,200,000 contract for development of a system engineers say might have saved the ill-fated submarine Thresher. The plan calls for installing solid-propellant rocket engines in submarine ballast tanks to quickly expel water during a deep-sea emergency. The Thresher went down off New England April 10, 1963, with all 129 aboard, after an emergency developed during a deep test dive.

Tokyo Students Stage March

TOKYO (AP)—About 80 Japanese students staged a non-violent demonstration protesting government efforts to continue diplomatic normalization negotiations with South Korea. Police said about 60 mobile police were called out to quell the marchers. No arrests were made, police said.

Circus Is On

No 'Panic' Backstage

The band blares out a fanfare, the lead horse pricks up its ears and lifts its proud head a little higher, a hush settles over the crowd, then the horse tosses its silver mane and moves out of the entrance tunnel and the circus is on.

A white-gowned singer steps up to the microphone and sings and the parade—or "spec line" as it's called in the business—moves into the arena.

Children applaud excitedly as the ponies high-step their way round the perimeter, the elephants plod trunk-to-tail, pretty girls in bright costumes smile and wave and the clowns engage in their already half-won battle for the children's hearts.

Little Tension

But what happens before all this glamour and gaiety is presented to the public? Is there panic behind the scenes; are circus people rushing around full of nerves and temperaments? Not with the Rudy Bros. Circus, anyway.

Even five minutes before show time there's little sign of tension.

Most excited person backstage is assistant manager and trouble shooter Mrs. Elfi Jacobi, wife of manager Rudy Jacobi.

She stands in a small office distributing programs to the sealers. A girl comes in with questions about some of the show's 300 costumes and Mrs. Jacobi answers excitedly as if she's heard the same question thousands of times before and always gives the same answer.

Presses Costume

In a corner of the office, calmly pressing her parade costumes is Trish who before long will be raking her life as she thrills the crowd with high wire stunts without benefit of net.

In a dressing room, clowns talk quietly as they paint grotesque eyebrows and teeth on their faces.

Everywhere you hear Spanish spoken because Spaniards, Mexicans and Puerto Ricans are in the majority of the 12 nations represented in the circus. Their temperament makes them ideally suited to circus work and they devote their lives to it.

Latins, But Quiet

But it's hard to imagine that these seemingly quiet people are Latins.

Alphonso Marillo sits quietly while Lollo Sanchez cuts his hair. Not as relaxation before the show, but simply because there's often no time to go to a commercial barber, and anyway, north of the border, barbers don't seem to understand that Mexicans like long hair neatly trimmed and not cut short as Canadians and Americans prefer it.

Outside a trumpet call is heard. It's 15 minutes to show time.

Everyone Ready

There'll be another call in 10 minutes but before then handlers will have their animals ready; girls in spangled tights, hooped skirts, Spanish dresses and gay cloaks will be standing by ready for the ring-master's shout.

The fanfare sounds; the Palomino lifts its head, girls arrange their dresses and the slightly bored look leaves their faces. The circus is on.

Breakdown Delays Jungle Act

Circus-goers were deprived of the jungle animal act at the Shrine Circus yesterday due to an accident, but circus officials hope the act will be here in time for today's shows at 4 p.m. and 8 p.m.

The truck carrying Kellers Jungle Killers burned out its motor in Medford, Oregon, and the act was delayed while a replacement was being flown in.

Don't Tow Everybody Away

The practice of city police in towing away cars left parked on main street no stopping areas could be damaging to Victoria's tourist industry, a city hotel operator said yesterday.

Peter Hartnell, operator of the Thunderbird Motel, 600 Douglas, made the claim after he watched several cars—among them a car owned by visitors to the city—towed away by wreckers.

"This could result in a lot of adverse publicity which could be damaging to the tourist industry," said Mr. Hartnell angrily. "If people go home and tell others about it, it's going to discourage them from visiting our city."

"We should be courteous to strangers and visitors," he added. "After all, this isn't New York and Victoria's traffic problem—except for a 20-minute period as office-workers go home each day—isn't so serious."

"In Italy special courtesies are extended to visiting motorists. This towing away practice should be done with discretion."

Comments also came from Alan Maclean, commissioner of Victoria Visitors' Bureau.

"I'm aware of this practice," said Mr. Maclean. "I haven't had a chance of doing anything about it yet. But it is something that should be studied."

"I know that this does happen in other cities, but I think there should be some way devised of making it easier on the tourists."

Mr. Maclean said he thought tourists should get only a warning on their first offence, instead of a fine.

A spokesman at the city police traffic department said: "We haven't had any complaints from tourists."

"One whole lane of traffic can be brought to a standstill by a parked car. There are signs saying 'no stopping' and people should take notice of them."

"When our officers order a car to be towed away they wait by the car and if the driver returns before the wrecker arrives, the person is allowed to drive off and is given a ticket."

"This doesn't happen everywhere. In Vancouver the wreckers just cruise around towing cars away all the time without any warning. It would be impossible to extend any favoritism to anyone just because they were tourists."

Mayor R. B. Wilson said he didn't want to comment on the matter, but said, "any complaints should be handled by the police commission."

For Woolco Store

Sign Bylaw Changed

Saanich council last night approved a change in the sign bylaw which will allow a Town and Country department store to erect a nine-foot sign on its roof.

Council's approval gave the Woolco department store, scheduled for completion in early November, the go-ahead to erect the sign, even though it is still subject to council passing a by-law amendment.

OOZE, COURTS AGAINST

Coun. Gregory Cook and Coun. Hugh Curtis voted against the change.

Before approving the move to amend the bylaw, council was shown a plan of the proposed sign as it would look when erected on the building.

It will be a series of panels, one for each letter of the store's name, which will be flush with the front of the building and will sit with its base on the roof.

Coun. Cook said: "It is all very well to tie the change to the 150,000 square feet stipulation, but now other people will ask for modifications."

"We are throwing it open to change. I thought we had a limit, but now it appears that the sky is the limit."

The sign bylaw has been in effect for about four years, and has been widely acclaimed by both press and public.

Banquet, Show

Victoria Magic Circle will hold a banquet and magic show for out-of-town magicians at the Club Sirocco, Sept. 26.

It will be a series of panels, one for each letter of the store's name, which will be flush with the front of the building and will sit with its base on the roof.

Coun. Cook said: "It is all very well to tie the change to the 150,000 square feet stipulation, but now other people will ask for modifications."

Blonde Acquitted In Assize Court

An all-male B.C. Assize Court jury yesterday acquitted Gunda May Meldra, 21, of 1464 Begbie, on charges of uttering a forged cheque and false pretences.

The attractive blonde girl was charged after a woman cashed a forged cheque for $138 at a Sidney bank last July. She pleaded not guilty through defence counsel Michael Warren.

The case was tried before Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton. Lloyd McKenzie was Crown prosecutor.

Tower Step Nearer

Planners Agree to Ease Regulations

The advisory planning commission has agreed in principle to easing regulations so that a 25-storey apartment block can be built in downtown Victoria.

But the commission informed city council yesterday that before giving final approval it wants to see plans at a stage far enough advanced to determine precise locations of the tower on the site at Blanshard and Quadra and the exterior appearance.

The zoning bylaw limits downtown buildings to a height of six storeys, but there is provision for relaxation with approval of the advisory planning body.

The commission said in its report that creation of a residential development, such as the one proposed, within the downtown pedestrian core "is looked upon with favor."

GROUND FLOOR

The report also noted that preliminary sketch plan show 100-per-cent off-street parking for the 168 apartments in the tower and an additional 132 off-street parking spaces for stores on the ground floor.

The request for easing setback regulations on the east side of the proposed site, it added, will be offset by "the feeling of open space created by the extra width of Blanshard Street at this point and siting of the B.C. Hydro building with its excellent landscaping and open spaces."

City council had previously tentatively approved the proposal for the 25-storey apartment.

Council earlier tabled another commission report urging rezoning of 56 acres in James Bay from light industrial to apartment use.

The area is bounded by Belleville, Oswego, Dallas and St. Lawrence.

It was agreed that all members of council in the next few days make an on-the-spot inspection of the area to determine whether the western boundary should be St. Lawrence or Montreal Street.

Big Boost In Fares Unnecessary

A slight increase in bus fares is inevitable but nothing like the amount suggested by B.C. Hydro, a Victoria transportation man said yesterday.

Cecil Wilkinson, 1710 Duchess, who has driven trucks and buses over 2,000,000 miles in B.C. for more than 35 years said batteries could be used to power the buses.

"Two-dam development means cheap power," he said. "This could be used for rapid charging of batteries. Cost of operation would be greatly reduced and there would be no smoke and no fumes."

Car Victims Improving

Slight improvement was reported last night in the condition of two traffic accident victims at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

In fair condition are Larry Williams, 17, of 2912 Quadra, and Mrs. Sylvia Bridges, 33, of 3333 Glasgow.

Mr. Williams was injured Feb. 29 when he was a passenger in a car that went out of control.

Mrs. Bridges was hit by a car May 7 as she walked along Cloverdale.

Drunks sent to jail through Greater Victoria Courts will stay there, although 200 of their Vancouver counterparts will be released because of a court oversight.

Attorney-General Bonner yesterday ordered the release of the Vancouver-sentenced men and women after a Supreme Court decision quashing the conviction of a woman improperly charged.

NO DETAILS

The practice in Vancouver magistrate's court had not been to give the details of the charges to the court before the plans were taken from the accused.

After Chief Justice J. O. Wilson quashed the one conviction, Attorney-General Bonner ordered the director of corrections to free some 200 persons held in Oakalla for periods of from a few days to several months.

ENTITLED TO FREEDOM

"In the circumstances these people would be entitled to be released if they made some application," he said.

"It could probably be demonstrated they were illegally detained."

APPEALS WAIVED

Mr. Bonner said he was waiving the necessity of those freed having to appeal to the courts, but any civil actions planned would be up to the individuals themselves.

In Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt's magistrate's courts—usually held before Magistrate William Oulter—no such oversights occurred.

HEARS CHARGE

In local cases, and there are about five each day, the accused hears the circumstances of the charge when his plea is taken.

Court officers say there has been no instructions to them from the attorney-general's office and they do not expect any.

Buses Could Stop

Victoria could find itself without bus service when the current franchise expires in 1967, city official T. P. O'Grady confirmed yesterday.

He agreed with a legal opinion given to Vancouver city council Wednesday that if the franchisees are not renewed or other arrangements made, B.C. Hydro could simply stop running its buses.

Mr. O'Grady said in telephone interview from Harrison Hot Springs, where he is attending a law society convention: "When the current franchise expires, the government's obligation ceases and the municipalities have never had any obligation in a legal sense to keep transit services running."

Swimming Class Signup Saturday

Final registrations for summer swimming classes take place at Kinsmen Gorge Park at 10 a.m. Saturday.

There are a few spaces left in the July 6 to 13 classes and plenty of room in the July 20 to Aug. 1 classes.

Red Cross instructors take the classes of beginners or juniors. The minimum age limit is eight years. The fee is $2.

Happy anticipation shows on faces of Barbara and Ricky Rainsford, aged 5 and 6, of 3110 Admirals, Margaret Down, 3, of 1552 Burnside, and Sylvia Schodenbeck, 5, of 1481 Burnside.

Room Closed

A special tea, arranged by the executive committee and convened by Mrs. Alexander McTurk and Mrs. C. H. Willis, was served to members when the Welcome Room held closing meeting of the season in the Legion Hall on Blanshard Street.

President Miss Irene Bannerman presided at the refreshment table and committee members were servitors. Mrs. Lily Barnes, on behalf of the members, gave vote of thanks to the committee and presented door prizes.

Mrs. L. McDonald sang two songs.

The Welcome Room will reopen on September 14.

No Snobbery

Expert Gives Tips on Wine

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — If you're afraid of wine, chances are you have been frightened by a snob. In Canada, wine drinking suffers because it is thought mysterious, smooty, or just the reverse—the resort of a lush who hasn't the price of hard liquor.

Lawrence Mindham, wine expert with William Mara Company, agents for wine and spirits, says there are regrettable fallacies, especially the snobbery.

"Every individual is his own wine expert. No person in the world has the right to intrude his opinion. I think if people understood that, then they wouldn't be afraid to order in a restaurant or serve the wrong wine at home. There is no wrong wine."

"Your own palate will educate you. An expert may be right as far as the book is concerned, but no matter what the so-called expert will tell you, a person should drink the wine he likes and enjoys."

He suggests a beginner should start with sweet wines. First try ports and cream or brown sherries — aperitifs or dessert wines. The label on the sherry will tell you what type it is.

Sweet or medium-sweet white table wines, which may be drunk during the meal, include sauternes, barbec, graves and liebfraumilch.

"Red wines are, by and large, dry, meaning they have less sugar."

If you're uncertain which category a wine fits into, ask the waiter or the man in the wine or liquor store.

Mr. Mindham suggests that if you're interested in learning about wines, one way is to buy a different type every week or so.

"Make notes. Keep your own record. All you've got to do cellar book. Six months or a year later try the same wines again and notice how your palate has changed because it is becoming trained to your own satisfaction. You may still not like a wine you didn't like the first time, but you may also find things in it you didn't see the first time."

"Experimentation is fun. Have a little patience with it. The art of marrying wine and food becomes a hobby. There are rules, but only if you want to follow them."

Mr. Mindham says he doesn't disapprove of "little flamboyances."

"Most of them are founded on really is open your wine and pour it out, but it does improve with certain treatments."

It should be served in clear, tulip-shaped snifter glasses which should be filled only about half full. The glass will concentrate the bouquet of the wine and show off its color. It should have a stem so that you don't mar the glass with finger marks or warm a chilled wine by holding it.

PERSONAL MENTION

Dr. and Mrs. W. A. McElmoyle of Rockland Avenue will have as their guest this weekend Sir Charles Illingworth of Glasgow. Sir Charles, who will arrive in Victoria early Sunday, will deliver the Lister Lecture at Canadian Medical Association annual meeting in Vancouver on Wednesday.

Visiting from Scotland

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Campbell of Dominion Road have as their guests Mrs. Campbell's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Moody of Leven in Fifeshire, Scotland. This is the first reunion in 45 years for Mrs. Campbell and her brother. Mr. and Mrs. Moody have spent the past three months in the United States visiting relatives in San Diego and Los Angeles and a son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moody of Seattle. They will leave Vancouver by ship in early July for their home in Scotland.

Luncheon for Examiners

The B.C. Registered Music Teachers' Association, Victoria Branch, gave a luncheon recently at the Dominion Hotel in honor of Mr. Lawrence Goodwill, examiner in Piano for the Royal Toronto Conservatory of Music. Miss Noel Smith, Conservatory local representative, was a special guest. Others present were Mrs. J. Bulmer, Mrs. C. Butler, Mrs. C. Dash, Mrs. J. Gilbert, Mrs. P. Hazard, Mrs. M. Hinde, Mrs. S. Holtzman, Mrs. A. Kershake, Mrs. M. Lines, Mrs. J. Lavertu, Mrs. S. Mack, Mrs. E. Manktelow, Mrs. G. MacDonald, Mrs. E. Sewell, Mrs. E. Screuch, Mrs. O. Stuart, Mrs. M. Till, Mrs. O. Young and the Misses M. Adamson, F. Bedford, H. Gibson, P. Hick, C. Leask, L. Leach, E. Le Gresley, F. Phillimore, M. Tebo, Mr. W. Gregory, Mr. E. Edwards and Mr. F. Krieger.

Trip to Winnipeg

Mr. and Mrs. Harris Smith, Cook Street, were recent guests at the St. Regis Hotel in Winnipeg. Mrs. Harris attended the 25th reunion of nurses graduating from St. Boniface hospital. They will also visit relations in Kenora, Ont.

Wedding Guests

Among the out-of-town guests at the Hopwood-Broomfield wedding were Mrs. Elizabeth Broomfield, bride's grandmother, and Mr. William Hayes, bride's grandfather, from England; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hopwood, Mr. C. Hopwood, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Smyth, Mrs. E. Thurley and Mrs. D. Hogewide, Alberni; Mr. and Mrs. J. Van de Woude, New Westminster; Mr. and Mrs. R. Houston, Nanaimo; Mr. and Mrs. W. McConnachie, Courtenay, and Mr. and Mrs. J. St. Dennis, Combs.

Visit Father

Mrs. Charlie Gillies, Long Beach, Calif., and Mr. Wally Grieve, Calgary, Alta., have left for their homes after visiting their father, Mr. Fred Grieve, a patient at Jubilee Hospital.

Caroline Macklem Home, 1322 Rockland Avenue, will be setting for the annual garden party on June 24, from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Strawberry shortcake and tea will be served at affair, which is being sponsored by all branches of Woman's Auxiliary of Anglican Churches on Vancouver Island and Gulf Islands. Victoria School Band will play during the afternoon and there will be stalls laden with home cooking, candy, aprons, white elephant and jewelry as added attraction. Looking forward to the party are these guests at the Home, from left, Mrs. M. A. Pennington, Mrs. E. W. Fisher and Mrs. F. Porter.—(Bud Kinman)

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Black Married in West Vancouver

Forthcoming marriage is announced of Judith Anne, daughter of Mrs. Ainslie Worthington, Bickerton Court, and late Mr. Worthington, to Mr. Neil Edward Paget, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Paget, 841 Pemberton Road. Wedding will take place on July 11 at 3 p.m. in First United Church with Rev. Leighton Streight officiating. Both are graduates of University of British Columbia, with Mr. Paget having received his B.Sc. degree in engineering. — (Campbell of Vancouver)

St. Christopher's Anglican Church in West Vancouver was the setting for the pretty June wedding uniting in marriage Georgia Lynne Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ormond St. Clair Harris of West Vancouver, and Mr. Wesley David Black, son of Hon. Wesley D. Black and Mrs. Black, 2832 Murray Drive.

White gladioli and snapdragons decorated the church for evening ceremony at which Rev. J. A. G. Wilson officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length empire line gown of white silk crepe that was slightly en train. It was highlighted with a re-embroidered lace jacket. Her lace mantilla related to shoulder-length and she carried a bouquet of phloxes, stephanotis and ivy.

Floor-length gowns of ice green silk, slightly en train, were choice of maid of honor, Miss Helen Harris, the bride's sister, and bridesmaid, Miss Susan Logan. They wore cloche-style headpieces of blue, purple and mauve anemones and carried bouquets of matching flowers.

Mr. William S. Bernardino was best man and guests were ushered to their pews by Mr. Robert G. Atkinson and Mr. James S. Winchell.

Mr. G. E. Ted Baynes proposed the toast to the bride's happiness at reception which followed in Capilano Golf Club, West Vancouver. The bride's table was centred with an all-white four-tier wedding cake flanked by white candles in silver candelabra. Arrangements of gladioli and snapdragons completed the decor.

The couple spent their honeymoon on Vancouver Island and are now making their home in Vancouver.

Guests from Victoria attending the wedding were Hon. Leslie R. Peterson and Mrs. Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. John Erb and Mr. and Mrs. L. Stewart. Other out-of-town guests were Mrs. J. Arthur John, Misses Stephanie and Kimberley John, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Reid, all of Toronto; Mrs. Peter Rodin and Miss Minka Rodin, Salmon Arm; Mrs. Trevor Williams, Calgary.

Church Fair Raises $800

St. Matthias' parish gave a warm welcome to Bishop Remi de Roo recently when he performed the opening ceremony at their Country Fair. Bishop de Roo was introduced by Archbishop H. E. Sexton.

Gaily decorated stalls were quickly emptied of their merchandise by the many "shoppers" while children enjoyed the "fun of the fair" with games, pop and ice cream.

The giant panda was won by Mrs. K. Gresham. Proceeds amounting to well over $800 are to be given to the Diocesan Extension Special Needs Fund.

Mrs. Sparling Receives Pin

Presentation of a life membership pin and corsage was made to past-president, Mrs. D. B. Sparling, at the June meeting of Belmont Avenue United Church Women.

Mrs. Norman Langton, president, on behalf of the group, thanked Mrs. Sparling for her dedicated service during the past five years. Following the meeting the members were shown through the well-equipped house trailer in which Dr. and Mrs. Sparling plan to live and travel following their retirement this month.

Plans were made for a garden tea in July.

Orthopaedic Surgeons Arriving Here Today

This weekend's calendar will be crowded with many social activities for both visiting and local orthopaedic surgeons and their wives.

About 18 doctors and their wives will arrive this afternoon on the 3 o'clock ferry from Vancouver where they have spent the past week at delegates at the fourth combined meeting of the American, British and Canadian Orthopaedic Associations, together with the Orthopaedic Associations of South Africa, New Zealand, Australia and France. The meeting started in Montreal June 7 and will end in Los Angeles on June 27.

The delegates will be guests at the Empress Hotel. On Saturday the doctors will be taken by bus to the Queen Alexander Solarium for rounds and discussions.

That evening they will meet again at the Net Loft for a smorgasbord and from there will leave for a night tour of Butchart Gardens as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ian Ross.

On Sunday the visitors will be picked up at the Empress Hotel for a tour up-Island to Cathedral Grove, with a lunch stop at Qualicum Beach Inn. On their return to Victoria that evening they will be guests at the homes of Dr. R. N. Grant, Rockland Avenue, and Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Anderson, Shasta Place.

On behalf of the local orthopaedic surgeons.

Among the visitors will be Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Denham, Fareham; Dr. C. Linton, Southsea; Dr. and Mrs. J. Batchelor, London; Dr. and Mrs. B. Lawson and daughter, Chislehurst; Dr. and Mrs. G. Blundell Jones, Exeter; Dr. and Mrs. Omond-Clarke, London; Dr. Cyril C. Black, Northumberland; Dr. C. R. Fisk, Sandridge, and Dr. and Mrs. H. McMullen, Worktop, all of England; Dr. and Mrs.

G. W. Peebles, Scotland; Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Maxwell and Dr. and Mrs. P. M. Segelov, Sydney, Australia; Dr. and Mrs. George K. Carpenter, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. and Mrs. Charles Rombold, Wichita, Kan.; Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Grover, Vallejo, Calif.; Dr. Joseph A. Freiberg, Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Butler, Montreal, Que., and Dr. H. M. Coleman, Toronto, Ont.

Other guests attending party at Dr. and Mrs. Anderson's home will be Dr. and Mrs. P. R. Tucker and Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hollenberg, Winnipeg, Man.; Dr. and Mrs. Gordon Grant and Mrs. A. E. Trotter, Victoria.

On Monday morning the doctors will visit the Gorge Road Hospital and will be joined by their wives at noon for a luncheon at the hospital.

That afternoon following an hour tour of the city by bus the visitors will go to Government House for afternoon tea as guests of His Honor, Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Penikese.

That evening they will be guests at dinner in the Union Club of the four local orthopaedic surgeons and their wives, Dr. and Mrs. Grant, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Carter, Dr. and Mrs. Anderson and Dr. and Mrs. D. A. Gaudin.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Your reply to "Daughter of Sorrow" was good. She was the girl who for years was beaten unmercifully by her mother. Through therapy the girl was able to forgive her mother instead of spending her life filled with hatred and bitterness.

Psychiatry isn't the only answer, Ann. My story was similar to hers—only worse.

I am 19 now, and the first nine years of my life were hell. Dad was the town drunk. I'm sure he turned to the bottle because it was the only way he could escape from mother's screaming and temper tantrums. My sister and I lived in constant fear of beatings, filthy language and humiliation before friends.

When I was in the fourth grade I passed out in school. For 20 minutes I could not be revived. The principal and school nurse took off my blouse. They found welts and bruises all over my back. When they questioned me I told them everything.

The next day the police and welfare authorities investigated our home life. My sister and I were placed in a foster home and my father, with the help of a clergyman and AA, straightened out. Mother was put in a mental institution where she died two years ago.

If children who are beaten by their parents would tell the school authorities they might not need psychiatric care later. Will you please tell them?—SPARED.

Dear Spared: I do tell them. Perhaps you are not aware that the advice which appears in the newspapers is only a small part of the service we give. Every week thousands of readers who send self-addressed envelopes get personal advice in the mail. I am aware that some kids exaggerate, and others make up stories out of whole cloth, but I always suggest that children talk to a favorite teacher or the principal if there is brutality at home. If the story is not true nothing has been lost.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend (?) who has been pulling a cheap little trick for years and I am darned sick of it.

Whenever she owes me an invitation she invariably invites me for an evening when she knows I've been invited somewhere else.

I'm sure you'll say such words could hardly be considered friends and they are not worth bothering with. Of course, you are right, but please print my letter so they will know they are not getting away with anything. Thank you. —X-RAY EYES

Dear Eyes: Here is your letter and I hope your sneaky acquaintance and others who pull such shenanigans will see it and realize that they are not putting anything over on anyone. You're welcome.

Dear Ann: Our son will be one year old in August.

My husband's parents had a bitter divorce several years ago. His parents have both remarried but they hate each other and make no bones about it. It is not possible to have them in the house at the same time.

I don't want to give two birthday parties for our son every year and yet I don't want to offend either set of grandparents. How should I handle this hot potato?—D.F.T.

Dear D: Draw straws for the first birthday party and let the losers come over the night before, for a cup of coffee and a cupcake with a candle on it. Alternate from then on—invite one set of parents one year and the other set the next year.

Fourth of Heart Deaths

MONTREAL (CP)—Winnipeg-born Dr. Elizabeth Lautsch arrived in Quebec City 30 years ago with $24 and a determination to become a doctor.

Now she is associate professor of pathology at Temple University, Philadelphia, and a specialist in neuropathology and cardio-vascular pathology.

Dr. Lautsch was in Montreal to deliver a paper to the seventh Interamerican congress of cardiology being held here.

In an interview, she said she reached the top "the hard way."

Besides the $24, she had a knowledge of French, English and German, when she embarked on her education.

"I made ends meet by giving language lessons—French to the English, English to the French and German to both."

She said her father gave her $25 a month towards her school fees "and his blessing," as she was the youngest of six children and it was during the depression.

She graduated from Laval University with her medical degree in 1914 and returned to Winnipeg to build a private practice.

She returned to Laval three years later for postgraduate studies, and eventually was appointed lecturer.

She joined the staff at Temple University in 1955.

One of her duties is to do all pathology reports on the heart and blood vessels in the university hospital.

Her research paper Tuesday concentrated on the structure of the heart valves and their structural changes due to the effects of rheumatic fever.

"Such research could ultimately mean that a prosthetic appliance could be made to replace a valve damaged by rheumatic fever. One-fourth of all the people who die of heart disease are people who have had rheumatic fever at one time or another."

Plan Party

Victoria and Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society will hold its last social evening of the season June 25 at 8 p.m. in the War Amps Hall.

The annual garden party of the society will be held Aug. 1 at 2 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Morgan, 723 Pemberton Road.

Hospital Auxiliary Awards Silver Pin

TOFINO—A silver Tofino General Hospital auxiliary pin will be sent to Mrs. Keith Gill, a member who has moved to West Vancouver on the promotion of her husband, former B.C. Forest Products manager here.

The auxiliary decided to send the pin at its recent meeting in the home of Mrs. K. B. Norman.

The auxiliary learned net proceeds of the Mothers' Day sale, tea and raffle were $150, and decided to plan the fall sale of work, homecooking and tea at the next meeting in the home of president Mrs. E. R. Hagelin Sept. 10.

Auxiliary members decided to furnish a day room in the hospital's new wing, construction of which has not yet begun. Another presentation was to Mrs. Mike Jefferies, who received two pictures of Long Beach before the family moves to Ashcroft, where Mr. Jefferies has been posted by the transport department.

Gordon Barrie, former fisheries officer in the Tofino area, and his wife have been spending a week in the district. They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Hansen and Mr. Oscar Hansen.

Mrs. Steinius Knott of Vancouver is on holiday here, visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Knight. She will also visit another son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hansen, and son John and his wife.

IODE Hears Convention Report

Mrs. Peter Bell was a guest at the regular meeting of Royal Roads Chapter IODE held at the home of Mrs. M. Zabel. A pot luck supper preceded the business meeting.

Mrs. Bell, who was a delegate to the annual convention in Fredericton, N.B., gave an informative talk on each phase of the work as was discussed at the convention.

Money was voted to following funds: national and emergency welfare, $50; Korean projects, $50; Canadian Scene, $5; Overseas Relief, $25; national shipping fund, $15; Peace Garden, $1; Dr. Graham's Home, $3.

Top Student To Receive IODE Book

A letter from Dr. C. Whit- tier to say she will continue to serve in Indore, India, for two more years, was read at Navy League Chapter, IODE, meeting held at Brighton Avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Watt.

Leading history student in a Victoria school will receive a book. It was announced that the penny sale will be held in the Odium Theatre lobby in mid-October.

Single will be held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Genge, 2571 Mara Street.

Regular meeting of Women's Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital will be held in the garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hobbs, 3880 Robb Road on Wednesday, June 24 at 1 p.m.

Bureau Foresees Best Tourist Year

By KEN JOHNSON

Victoria may have one of its best tourist seasons ever this year, officials at Victoria Visitors' Bureau said yesterday.

"Naturally, no one can say for sure how many tourists are going to visit Vancouver Island at any given time," said assistant commissioner M. E. Heppell.

BETTER THAN '55

"But we are hoping this year will be much better than last year."

"If things keep up the way they are going," said commissioner Alan Maclean, "it certainly will be a good year."

JULY, AUGUST

Peak tourist time anticipated in the latter end of July and early August.

Last month alone the Visitors' Bureau handled more than 20,000 inquiries from prospective visitors and would-be residents, about Victoria.

ALL OVER WORLD

"They come in from all over the world," said Mr. Heppell. "We send them brochures and information and give any advice we can."

As in previous years, as the tourist season approaches its peak, the bureau operates from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week.

BE HOSPITABLE

"The tourist industry is something in which everyone can help, no matter what trade they are in," said Mr. Heppell. "Having lured people here, the least we can do is to be hospitable, polite and courteous."

"That applies to everyone from the hotel operators to the waiters, waitresses, car hops, gas pump attendants — just everybody."

WON'T COME BACK

"If they don't get treated properly and politely, they won't come back again. And the tourist industry is one of the foundations of our economy."

"If they don't come, stores and tradespeople will suffer — and eventually so will all the citizens."

KIND AND HELPFUL

Mr. Maclean added: "It's up to people in the street to be kind and helpful to any tourist they see around the city. These things are what make a holiday for people."

Mr. Heppell said the tourists' business was beginning to pick up rapidly, especially since the recent opening of the Seattle ferry run.

The opening of Rogers Pass would also attract many more tourists from the mainland, he said.

Glasgow Lifts Pub Song Curb

GLASGOW (AP)—Glasgow, where drinking long has been recognized as a serious business, is going to allow singing in pubs.

City magistrates have approved 123 applications for pub music licences, the first they have issued. Those who prefer their scotch in silence still can seek refuge in more than 1,000 non-musical pubs.

Bishops Win Support

'Pill' Taboo Says Rome

LONDON (AP)—The Roman Catholic bishops of Britain Thursday won Vatican backing for their firm stand against the growing use of birth control among the faithful.

Dr. John Heenan, Archbishop of Westminster, published a letter he had received from Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, secretary of the Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office in Rome, in which the cardinal gives assurances that he backs the British bishops' stand.

NOT OPEN QUESTION

A misunderstanding developed between Westminster and Rome after Dr. Heenan and his fellow bishops had sternly warned their flock last month that contraception was not an open question and could not be approved by the Vatican council because "it is against the law of God."

The bishops gave their ruling because many of Britain's 4,000,000 Roman Catholics thought

SUBMIT VIEWS

Cardinal Ottaviani also said churchmen who had anything to say should submit their views to the Holy See for consideration with the juridical, medical and moral aspects of the question.

'Future' Saved By Past

LONDON (UPI)—The Tallman, Britain's 100-mile-an-hour "train of the future," grounded into King's Cross station 50 minutes late. It would not have made it at all last night had it not been for the lowly steam engine.

The streamliner conked out near Durham. Two steam engines towed the Tallman in relays to Darlington.

WINNING CONTRACT

By Howard Schenken and Richard L. Frey

It declares that a favorable line of the cards will bring overtricks, he should not begrudge the gift of a trick to an opponent who cannot cause trouble.

Students Want to Take Socialism Back to U.S.

More Indians Report On Missing Plane

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—Reports that groups of Indians had sighted a ski-equipped single-engine plane missing with three men aboard continued to arrive at search headquarters here Thursday, the RCMP said. The missing plane, carrying veteran northern pilot Chuck McAvoy, 31, and two United States geologists, was reported seen several times June 9 on the east shore of Hotta Lake, 40 miles southeast of Sawmill Bay on Great Bear Lake.

HAVANA (UPI)—A New York student who has identified himself as a Communist was quoted yesterday as saying the 75 Americans who defied a U.S. ban on travel to Cuba to come here as state guests want to take "socialism" back to their country.

The newspaper El Mundo quoted Edward Lemansky, 23, as saying in an interview: "We want to know the correct methods used here and the mistakes you made in order to be well prepared to take socialism to our country."

Lemansky said the U.S. state department was not happy about the group's trip to Cuba because of "fear of socialism . . . Washington also fears that on our return we will speak to the people and tell them socialism is the only solution to many of the problems we have over there."

Lemansky described himself as an organizer of the Progressive Labor Party and a sociologist. He has been the spokesman for the group since its arrival in Havana last Friday. All of the students in the group made donations to the Cuban blood bank except Scott Wilson, 18, of San Francisco, who was under the minimum age of 18. He said he was disappointed because Communist Cuba "is a wonderful thing . . . we can see all the freedom of expression they have here. . . ."

Toronto Star Paid $3,000 For Will of Hanged Man

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Quebec City lawyer Francois de B. Gravel told a royal commission yesterday that he received $3,000 from the Toronto Daily Star in return for the will of the late Wilbert Coffin. The Toronto newspaper printed Coffin's last wishes on its front page February 10, 1956, night before the hanging so it could get the news first.

Penny partners Titus and Denholm and their prize.

Bad Penny Worth $5,000 and Up

NANAIMO—Two men are thanking their lucky stars that a mistake made at the Canadian mint in 1962 went unnoticed.

John Denholm of Cedar, and Carl Titus, 343 Hallburton, are co-owners of a 1962 "off-struck" penny that is said, by a local coin dealer, to be worth at least $3,000 with "no ceiling" on how high the price could go.

The unusual feature of the coin is that the penny stamping machine at the mint was out about one eighth of an inch and the error was not noticed either by an inspector or during the rolling process. Off-struck coins have been released by the mint before but Mr.

Titus said never as far off-struck as one-eighth of an inch. He estimates it is the only one of its kind ever released.

Mr. Denholm, a tugboat worker, first came into possession of the penny during the summer of 1963. He said he noticed it was unusual so he threw it on a shelf and forgot about it.

Tuesday he grabbed a handful of change at home before going to the Hallburton Street gun works to buy a hunting rifle and while he and Carl Titus, a coin collector, were working out the change Mr. Titus noticed the penny and handed it back.

They wound up partners and say they will sell to the highest bidder. The unusual penny is not listed in any coin catalogues, so notices are being mailed to coin collectors throughout North America advising them it is up for sale. Because of the value of the coin, it is being kept under lock and key until a buyer is found.

Rights Bill Won Today But Barry Voting No

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a closing oratorical flourish, the Senate recessed Thursday for a momentous vote today on civil rights legislation granting the federal government unprecedented legal powers to hasten the end of discrimination in America.

Final passage was assured when the Senate meets at 11 a.m.

Tensest moment Thursday came when Arizona Sen.

Barry Goldwater rose in the hushed chamber to announce he would vote reluctantly against the measure.

The leading candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, whose hopes may well hinge on that vote, said he could not "in good conscience" accept the measure's sections outlawing discrimination in employment and public accommodations.

Although firmly against discrimination, he said, the issue is "fundamentally a matter of the heart."

Republican liberal spokesmen such as New York's senators Kenneth E. Keating and Jacob K. Javits who have been opposing Goldwater's nomination, hinted that Liberals might have to run independently of the national ticket in November and Javits called the decision tragic.

Democratic Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana said Goldwater's stand greatly increases his chances for defeating Johnson in the South.

Intervention by UN 'No Help' In Cyprus

ANKARA (Reuters)—Premier Ismet Inonu told the senate Thursday NATO and United Nations intervention in Cyprus had achieved "no active result."

Inonu said Turkey had been ready to intervene since the middle of May after the Greek government announced support for Cyprus President Makarios and Greek-Cypriots prepared for a massacre of Turks.

U.S. QUERY

Inonu disclosed the United States asked on June 3 and 4 whether Turkey wished to intervene and, if so, not to do so.

Meanwhile, Turkey prepared for a showdown between Inonu and the nation's opposition parties as a result of their refusal to grant a vote of confidence before his departure for Washington to discuss the Cyprus situation.

The premier, due to leave Sunday for talks with President Johnson, warned Wednesday he would not go to Washington unless the National Assembly gave him a vote of confidence by Friday.

In setting Friday as the deadline, Inonu did not say whether he would resign if he failed to obtain the vote.

Nor was there any indication that failure to obtain a vote of confidence would automatically require him to resign.

MANSOURA, Cyprus (UPI)—

The heaviest fighting since April flared Thursday in this Turkish valley town surrounded by Greek Cypriot hilltop villages. At least one person was killed and nine were wounded.

Turkish Cypriots brought mortars into action against the more favorable Greek positions. The smoke from the mortars led to false reports that a church and school had been set afire in the Greek village of Mospilioti.

SWEDEN RUSH IN

Strong detachments of United Nations Swedish troops were rushed into the area in an effort to halt the fighting and stop the flow of Greek reinforcements.

The Swedish unit seized two mortars and one bazooka in the Turkish Cypriot village of Kokkina.

TO SAVE LIVES

Defending the seizure, UN commander Col. J. Waern said: "When a situation is out of control as it was in this case, with women and children threatened, my primary duty is to save lives and to remove the heavy weapons."

The UN officer told the Turks their weapons would be returned, but a spokesman for the Turkish Cypriots said "all hopes of future co-operation with the Swedes are gone."

Bill Talked Out

Conscription Best For Civil Defence

OTTAWA (CP)—Conscription would be more useful for civil defence than for military training, Defence Production Minister Drury told the Commons defence committee Thursday.

He was replying to Gerald Laniel (L.—Beauséjour-Saint-Hubert) whose resolution advocating conscription of young people was earlier talked out in the Commons.

COST AN OBSTACLE
Mr. Drury said cost would be a serious obstacle to conscription. He did not say—and was not asked—whether he is in favor of conscription specifically.

At another point, Mr. Drury, the minister responsible for the Emergency Measures Organization, said $150,000,000 was spent between 1957 and March, 1963, on civil defence.

NO SHELTER PLANS
He said the government has no plans to do anything more than has been done in the past concerning home shelters. Approximately 1,000 home shelters were in existence but only 200 of these had been built under the National Housing Act.

Mr. Drury said a program aimed at designing cheaper shelters is in progress and the government is considering a program to use public buildings as public shelters.

A survey of all public buildings was being carried out in Alberta "to develop procedures and techniques should it be considered desirable to carry out a national survey."

Douglas Hartness, former Conservative defence minister, said he regrets there has been no federal-provincial conference on civil defence since December, 1962.

Mr. Drury said he hopes one can be held this year.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—California, the United States' most automobile-conscious state, yesterday stood at the threshold of eliminating its most unwanted product—smog.

By about 1970, the state hopes to virtually wipe out the major source of plant-killing, eye-irritating smog that comes from its estimated 10,000,000 automobiles spewing pollutants into the air.

A major step toward that goal was taken Wednesday. By unanimous vote, the state Motor Vehicle Pollution Control Board adopted four exhaust control devices for new 1966 cars.

In adopting two more devices than was required, the MVPCB triggered into law a mandatory requirement for all automobile manufacturers to equip all 1966 cars with an exhaust control device.

Manufacturers already equip new cars with another smog-control system: the crankcase blow-by device. This has been mandatory for new cars since 1963.

In automobiles not equipped with a blow-by device, a mixture of air and fuel leaks past the car's piston rings and into the crankcase. From the crankcase the mixture of air and fuel is released as pollutants into the atmosphere.

To stop this a blow-by device is installed on the auto. It carries the fuel-air mixture back into the carburetor, where it is returned.

The MVPCB said that when exhaust control devices work jointly with crankcase blow-by devices, the smog-producing emissions of each car will be reduced by more than 80 per cent.

This would have a drastic effect on a city the size of Los Angeles, which has more than one-third of the cars in the state, the MVPCB said.

The exhaust control device winning approval were submitted jointly by American Machine and Foundry-Chromalloy Corp., Walker Manufacturing-American Cyanamid Co., Arvin Industries-Universal Oil Products and W. R. Grace & Co.-Norvia Thermaflex Corp.

Of the four systems, AMF-Chromalloy device was also approved for 1962 and later model cars, although its immediate effect would only apply to the 1966 model.

Soviet Plans Denounced By Romania

VIENNA (AP)—Romania has denounced Soviet plans to put some of Romania's key industrial areas under control of Comecon, the East bloc's council for mutual economic assistance, as attempts to "liquidate Romania as a state."

The charge, demonstrating the Romanian regime's drive toward more independence from Moscow and closer economic ties with the West, was voiced by Viata Economica (Economic Life), the journal of the Romanian Academy of Sciences.

"Romania will never take part in any 'supra-national' form of co-operation or in 'socialist integration,'" the journal declared.

U.S. Troops For Laos Next Move?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Bundy, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, said in Congressional testimony released Thursday that the United States would have to send troops to Laos if the North Vietnamese greatly stepped up the war there.

Guerrillas Leaving Borneo

TOKYO (AP) — Indonesian guerrillas began a long-awaited pullout from Malaysian Borneo Thursday, opening the way for a Tokyo summit conference to remove the threat of war between Indonesia and Malaysia.

Thirty-two heavily armed Indonesians passed through Tebedu checkpoint in Malaysian Borneo this morning on their way to the border.

Banana Ship Capsizes

HAMBURG (AP) — The 3,125-ton West German banana freighter Brunswick capsized Thursday as she slid out of a drydock in Hamburg's port, harbor police reported.

A ship's steward died in the accident, they added, but about 100 other men aboard, including several Soviet sailors, were saved.

The vessel was to be sold to the Soviet Union in a few days, its owners, W. Bruns and Company of Hamburg, said.

Negroes Clubbed in Pool

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Club-swinging police clashed Thursday with Negroes trying to integrate a motel swimming pool, bringing renewed violence to a troubled city trying to work out its racial problems.

Cries of "Arrest them! Get the dogs!" came from a watching crowd of 100 whites as police ripped the pool at the Mission Motor Lodge and rained blows on heads, backs and shoulders of five Negro men and women in the water.

Finally, the bruised Negroes, along with two white companions, climbed out and went to jail.

Manager James Brock of the Mission Lodge, an almost daily target of the integrationists, went to the steps of the motel restaurant to meet the first group of demonstrators. Soon he was angrily pushing and shoving them.

Later, when five Negro and two white demonstrators appeared wearing swim suits, Brock ran into the driveway and shouted: "Get off! This is private property!"

Then the demonstrators jumped into the pool as whites

already in the water shouted at them to get out.

Brock rushed to the poolside with two gallons of muriatic acid, a water purifier, and threw it at the demonstrators. Some of the liquid spilled on his arm and he washed the acid off in the water. None of the demonstrators was harmed by the acid.

Voters Say Yes

CAPITAL PLAN ON THE MOVE

By IAN STREET

Implementation of Victoria's $3,387,000 capital budget is to begin in earnest today following the overwhelming victory at the polls of the city council money bylaw Thursday.

The bylaw was approved by 77.8 per cent of the 4,174 ratepayers who cast ballots—3,251 to 875.

The turnout, although representing only 22.4 per cent of qualified voters, was better than expected for this time of year, and in fact, was only 700 less than voted in last December's civic elections.

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

The result was interpreted as a vote of confidence in Mayor R. B. Wilson and the members of city council.

"It is most encouraging," Mayor Wilson said last night, "that the public has seen fit to endorse council's scheme for capital works over the next five years in this handsome fashion."

"Now we have the tools to get on with the job."

SOME WORK DONE

City manager Dennis Young, who drew up the five-year program, said some preliminary work on an implementation schedule for the next 18-month period has already been done.

The big job ahead includes engineering studies, acquisition, and in some cases expropriation of property, application for grants from senior governments, drawing of plans, BORROW $1,500,000.

According to Mr. Young's findings the city can afford to borrow approximately $1,500,000 to carry out projects between now and the end of 1965.

For this amount there was no charge in the 1964 mill rate and taxes next year will be increased by about one-fifth of a mill to cover the capital borrowing.

Additional funds will be obtained in the form of federal and provincial grants.

BOWKER FIRST

The first project, beginning sometime in August, is likely to be the early stages of covering of Bowker Creek.

Working drawings for the 250-car parking facility in Centennial Square are already in preparation and it is hoped to call for tenders by early September with a start on construction sometime in October or November.

CONTRACT IN FALL

Plans for landscaping of Bastion Square are expected to be submitted for committee study by mid-July and it is hoped the contract can be let this fall so that it qualifies for fall winter works grants. Tentative completion date is late spring or early summer of 1965.

A new section of the Rose-Blanhard second main entrance to the city that will provide two separate one-way streets is also planned.

'Drunken' Hundreds Stand Good Chance Of Retrieving Fines

In Trade Deck

Maple Leaf Joker

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) Thursday night criticized the trade department for distributing promotional card games in which the maple leaf symbol is used as the joker.

Industry Minister Drury said the cards were designed and ordered in January, 1963, before the Liberal government took office. (See Page 5, 12.)

Mr. Horner raised the issue in the Commons adjournment debate, saying all Canadians will be shocked to hear the department is distributing the card decks throughout the world at various fairs.

The games, known as Canadian Maple Leaf and Canadian Timber, and were similar to Old Maid.

In the maple leaf game, one card was an exact replica of the proposed flag, he said.

A lawyer's victory in court has brought to light an improper procedure in the city's police court system, a procedure going back nine years. (See also page 2.)

The instance in question brought the release of Winifred Johnson, who had been jailed 20 days on a drunk charge.

ACTED QUICKLY

Her lawyer, Larry Hill, threatened similar proceedings on behalf of others, but Attorney-General Bonner Robert acted quickly Thursday and ordered the release of all prisoners wrongly convicted.

It will mean freedom by Saturday for some 200 convicted drunks in Oakalla prison and Vancouver city jail.

NOT BOTHERING

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson found in a supreme court judgment that the prosecutor's office had not been bothering to give information of drunk charges to police court before the pleas of defendants are taken.

As lawyer Hill put it, the city has been collecting fines and bail forfeitures from people "not charged with anything."

CIVIL CLAIMS

Attorney-General Bonner said Thursday that any civil claims by persons wrongfully convicted would have to be launched by the individuals themselves.

What claims they have for return of fines and bail forfeitures is a matter that the city will study thoroughly as soon as possible, says Charles Fleming, deputy corporation counsel for Vancouver.

Eyeful, Awful or Unlawful?

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
NEW YORK (AP) — It's all according to the viewpoint whether the modest thing in women's swimwear fashion, that topless wonder, is quite an eyeful, just awful, or unlawful.

Opinions differed this sharply this week as Rudi Gernreich's daring design for feminine sun worshippers was bared for buyers across the country after bracing introduction here a few days earlier.

Some buyers stocked it to keep step with the trend toward overall sunbathers, an Associated Press survey showed. Others snubbed it because the mode did not suit the moral mood of their clientele, or the town.

Lord and Taylor's in New York, cancelled an order because the halved bikini is

"not in taste conforming to standards of the store."

"That's indecent exposure," exclaimed a spokesman for Filenes, in Boston.

"They'll never sell in Seattle," said a spokesman for Bon Marche in that city.

"I can't see this fashion because it's a waste of the taxpayers' money and a shame on the Canadian maple leaf."

City Stores Don't, Won't—But Will

Victoria department stores don't and won't stock topless bathing suits but they will get them if requested, department spokesmen said yesterday.

Actually the topless suits have come too late for this summer's stocks.

When buying was done in November, the suits weren't available and it will be fall before the stores buy for next summer.

But department manager Brian Johnston said they might be carried as a matter of interest.

"If we are asked for them, we will air express them in."

We haven't been offered any by our Canadian agent," Mr. Johnston said.

He said that he plans to visit the Vancouver Buy Mart Monday and expects that salesmen there will discuss the suits with buyers.

"The idea is almost for next season," Mr. Johnston said.

Another store spokesman said the store is not planning to get any suits in and added, "I don't feel there is a market for them in Victoria."

Nanaimo Men Lucky

Mint Error Unnoticed

This Bad Penny's Worth $5,000 and Up

Penny partners Titus and Denholm and their prize.

NANAIMO—Two men are thanking their lucky stars that a mistake made at the Canadian mint in 1962 went unnoticed.

John Denholm of Cedar, and Carl Titus, 343 Halliburton, are co-owners of a 1962 "off-struck" penny that is said, by a local coin dealer, to be worth at least $5,000 with "no ceiling" on how high the price could go.

The unusual feature of the coin is that the penny stamping machine at the mint was out about one eighth of an inch and the error was not noticed either by an inspector or during the rolling process. Off-struck coins have been released by the mint before but Mr. Titus said never as far off-struck as one-eighth of an inch. He estimates it is the only one of its kind ever released.

Mr. Denholm, a tugboat worker, first came into possession of the penny during the summer of 1962. He said he noticed it was unusual so he threw it on a shelf and forgot about it.

Tuesday he grabbed a handful of change at home before going to the Halliburton Street gun works to buy a hunting rifle and while he and Carl Titus, a coin collector, were working out the change Mr. Titus noticed the penny and handed it back.

They wound up partners and say they will sell to the highest bidder. The unusual penny is not listed in any coin catalogues, so notices are being mailed to coin collectors throughout North America advising them it is up for sale. Because of the value of the coin, it is being kept under lock and key until a buyer is found.

TOFINO—Only one man was able to swim of the three tossed into Tofino Inlet when the speedboat Carabée hit a rock and sank just off Clayoquot on Stubbs Island, it was learned yesterday.

Logger Arthur Fleish helped boat owner Robert Douglas and fellow passenger John Irving to shore, then phoned the Clayoquot Hotel for help and another boat took the three to hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

The two loggers were being taken by Mr. Douglas to Tofino from the Lowry Bros. logging operation on Catface Mountain, across the inlet from Tofino. The boat was later raised and towed to Tofino Marine Works.

Buses Could Stop

Victoria could find itself without bus service when the current franchise expires in 1967, city solicitor T. P. O'Grady confirmed yesterday.

He agreed with a legal opinion given to Vancouver city council Wednesday that if the franchise is not renewed or other arrangements made, B.C. Hydro could simply stop running its buses.

Mr. O'Grady said in telephone interview from Harrison Hot Springs, where he is attending a law society convention: "When the current franchise expires, the government's obligation ceases and the municipalities have never had any obligation in a legal sense to keep transit services running."

Everyone's Welcome At Galiano Fiesta

GALIANO—Americans and Canadians alike will be welcome at Galiano's big salmon fiesta on Saturday, July 4.

The Galiano Island Chamber of Commerce has already started publicizing the fiesta by sending posters to yacht clubs and newspapers on both sides of the boundary.

"We don't care who comes, we've got 500 pounds of salmon to get rid of," said Mrs. M. E. Backlund, publicity chairman.

Many of Galiano's 250 permanent residents and 250 summer residents will also be on hand, and there will be games for children and possibly a dance for adults, she said.

Festivities will start about noon. Boats can anchor at the provincial government marina campsite and come ashore by dinghy.

Barbecued salmon will cost $2 a plate for the adults and $1 a plate for children under 12 years of age. Chief chef will be sawmill operator Tom Carlson, who takes pride in his culinary abilities.

Miss Beth Gillanders, a Vancouver school teacher, will be in charge of games to keep the children occupied.

Nanaimo Trustees Find

Problem? It's Been Solved

NANAIMO—Public school rooms of schools in District 68 is not possible.

"The accepted standards are those laid out in the school building manual," he said.

The school board resolution was introduced when trustee Brenda Morgan reported at the Wednesday night board meeting that Dr. Bonham felt medical rooms in schools and especially school additions are too small. At that time trustee Harold Godfrey suggested Dr. Bonham submit a report on medical rooms in district schools.

Dr. Bonham said the next day, "There is no dissatisfaction on my part now. The request for adequate medical rooms was made months ago. In the time from then to now school board personnel have given me the opportunity to look at plans and I have found them to be satisfactory."

He said the report was submitted in February and at that time he was concerned in case a number of proposed school additions did not include expanded medical facilities geared to handle the larger number of students.

He said in the school-by-school report submitted to the board he included a note that one medical room had become an office for a principal supervising four schools because of a lack of office space. While gathering information for the report Dr. Bonham said he observed that some schools had no medical rooms at all and that others had medical rooms being used as storage space.

PROBLEM SOLVED

"The report was submitted in February and since that time I've been totally satisfied with the procedure that has been followed. The problem has already been brought up, policy already set, already followed and already found acceptable. At this stage I can't understand the board's concern."

Meanwhile work has begun on additions at Park Avenue and Fairview Elementary Schools and on new schools on Rutherford and Rock City Roads.

Island Driver Guilty

NANAIMO—An Assize Court jury in Nanaimo has found a Campbell River man guilty of impaired driving, failing to remain at the scene of an accident, and dangerous driving, reduced from the original charge of criminal negligence.

William Henry Walker pleaded innocent to the charges which were laid by Campbell River RCMP following the death of 62-year-old Charlie Simpson in a motor vehicle accident Feb. 6.

Mr. Justice H. O. McLean sentenced Walker to nine months each on the convictions for dangerous driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident and one month on the impaired driving conviction. Terms are concurrent.

Cowichan Band Urged To Plan Development

DUNCAN—Planned development of the Cowichan Indian reserve's Somenos area where it joins the city of Duncan, was urged by town planning consultant Robert Williams from Vancouver, who recently addressed the Cowichan band council here.

Last month a development recommendation from the same planner was adopted in principle.

WARNED OF LEASING

Mr. Williams warned "haphazard leasing" could mean financial loss to the Indians and would "retard the development of the land for use by larger businesses."

At stake are about 55 acres of land owned by 10 families, but a small portion of it has already been leased for some years.

The entire area is situated between Trunk Road and the Cowichan River, and between the Trans-Canada Highway and the E & N Railroad.

PLANS OUTLINED

Plans for the land yet to be developed call for roads, utility services and the establishment of an organized commercial estate with landscaped grounds, a camping area, a motel site and a public footpath along the north shore of the Cowichan River.

Earlier, Duncan city council expressed great interest in the project.

WATER PROBLEM

Another problem facing the Indian band council is the water supply from the Koksilah River used by eight families and found unsafe by medical authorities unless purified.

While experts from the Indian Affairs branch investigate a permanent solution, the users of Koksilah River water have been advised to treat it. There is no satisfactory well in that area.

On the lookout for a location for its pet project, a community swimming pool, Duncan Rotary Club is studying the possibility to establish the pool on Indian land near the city parking lot.

POOL LETTER TABLED

A letter from Will Dobson, chairman of the swimming pool committee, asking the Indians to participate in the project by permitting the use of half an acre of land for the pool, was tabled but further discussions with Mr. Dobson are planned.

Members of the Cowichan Indian band council learned from Chief Mike Underwood that they are invited to attend the next meeting of the southern Vancouver Island allied tribes at Duncan, at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Swimming Class Signup Saturday

Final registrations for summer swimming classes take place at Kinsmen Gorge Park at 10 a.m. Saturday.

There are a few spaces left in the July 6 to 18 classes and plenty of room in the July 20 to Aug. 1 classes.

Red Cross instructors take the classes of beginners or juniors. The minimum age limit is eight years. The fee is $2.

Debt 'Collectors' Fined -Took Spare Tire, Wheel

DUNCAN—Theft of a tire and wheel from a parked car in lieu of an unpaid repair bill cost Allan Wilson and Lloyd Andette, both of Duncan, $50 and $25 respectively when they appeared in police court.

Drunks sent to jail through Greater Victoria Courts will stay there, although 200 of their Vancouver counterparts will be released because of a court oversight.

Attorney-General Bonner yesterday ordered the release of the Vancouver-sentenced men and women after a Supreme Court decision quashing the conviction of a woman improperly charged.

NO DETAILS

The practice in Vancouver magistrate's court had not been to give the details of the charges to the court before the pleas were taken from the accused.

After Chief Justice J. O. Wilson quashed the one conviction, Attorney-General Bonner ordered the director of corrections to free some 200 persons held in Oakalla for periods of from a few days to several months.

ENTITLED TO FREEDOM

"In the circumstances these people would be entitled to be released if they made some application," he said.

"It could probably be demonstrated they were illegally detained."

APPEALS WAIVED

Mr. Bonner said he was waiving the necessity of those freed having to appeal to the courts, but any civil actions planned would be up to the individuals themselves.

In Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt's magistrate's courts—usually held before Magistrate William Oster—no such oversights occurred.

HEARS CHANGE

Court officers say there has been no instructions to them from the attorney-general's office and they do not expect any.

Fund for Unions Hit by Strike Reaches $11,215

PORT ALBERNI—Amounts ranging from $5 to $3,000 have been reported among donations made to Alberni Valley emergency fund, for a total to date of $11,215.95, according to a report from the committee in charge of administering the monies to give financial assistance to unions affected by the strike here.

A report from Alberni Valley labor emergency committee said the fund is being administered by the financial secretaries of all union locals involved. Signing officers are John Robertson of IBP and PMW Local 582 and Rolf Bernstein of UPP Local 685.

RECEIVED DAILY
"Donations are being received daily from union locals all over Canada as well as from local business people in the Alberni Valley."

"It is interesting to note that covering letters from the unions have indicated that a continuing supply of funds are available," the committee stated in a release.

SECOND PAYMENT

Somass division employees, idle for a month after honoring the picket lines set up at the mill, were receiving their second payment from the fund on Thursday at the rate of $24 for a married man, $3 for each child, $18 for a single man. Alberni Pacific division and Alberni plywood employees are scheduled for a pay day Friday.

Other union locals, including electricians, pulp and paper workers and paper makers have registered their members for assistance and have arranged pay days.

Teacher Goes to CBC

PORT ALBERNI—A Port Alberni elementary school teacher, Barrie Black, has been appointed assistant director of the CBC school broadcast for the province.

Mr. Black will work with director Miss M. Musselman in the field of radio and school television.

The school board of district 70 has announced that Michael K. Linley, presently principal of Maebelle Elementary, has been appointed vice-principal of Maquinna School, while Bruce Brownie, a Maquinna teacher, will become principal of the Maebelle school.

Principal R. W. Lawson of A. W. Neill Junior Secondary has been chosen by the board to represent the district in the biennial principals' conference to be held during the first two weeks of July.

WA of St. Peter's To Hold Barbecue

DUNCAN—The long history of St. Peter's Anglican Church dating back to March 30, 1866, when five members attended the first service, will be recalled at the second annual salmon barbecue of the church's Afternoon Women's Auxiliary, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stone on Gibbins Road, at 5 p.m. June 25.

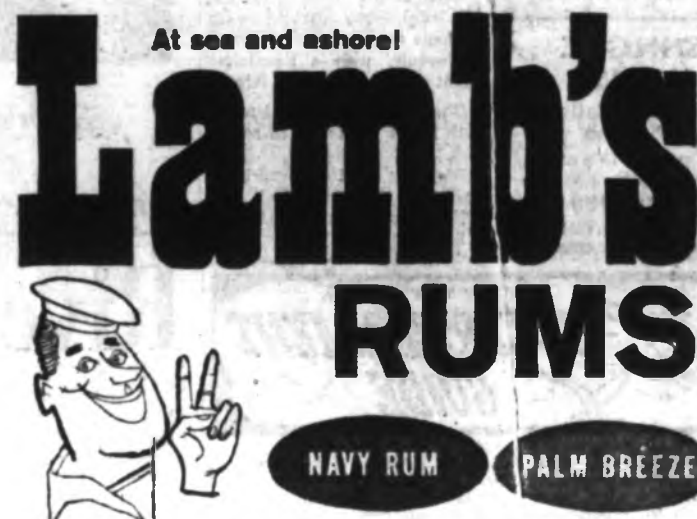

Instead of the annual garden parties, held for many years at the homes of parishioners, the Afternoon WA last year decided to hold a salmon barbecue.

Mrs. T. Y. Bazett, spokesman, said, "It was such an overwhelming success that this year the afternoon branch is being joined by members of the evening WA to St. Peter's Church to make it an even bigger and better event."

She said for those who don't like salmon other foods will be available and other highlights of the event will be home cooking, produce stalls, fish pond and hay rides and a variety of de-games.

'Suicide' Wades In, Swims 60 Miles

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Miami man, jobless and depressed, says he waded into the Atlantic Ocean at Miami Beach Monday night, planning to "swim until I went down."

Thirty-six hours later, Leo Ledoux, 35, was hauled aboard a cable cruiser three miles off Riviera Beach, 60 miles north of where he apparently entered the water. Ledoux's lips were parched and his eyes inflamed. Otherwise, he was in good physical condition.

"I waded out and then I started to swim," he related. "I swam and floated all night. After a while, I sort of changed my mind about dying. I started to swim back, but I guess I lost my sense of direction."

Ledoux got his clothes back from the beach Thursday. But someone had stolen his last $1.02.

CAPITAL BUDGET GETS GO-AHEAD

By IAN STREET

Implementation of Victoria's $3,387,000 capital budget is to begin in earnest today following the overwhelming victory at the polls of the city council money bylaw Thursday.

The bylaw was approved by 77.8 per cent of the 4,174 ratepayers who cast ballots—3,251 to 875.

The turnout, although representing only 22.4 per cent of qualified voters, was better than expected for this time of year, and in fact, was only 700 less than voted in last December's civic elections.

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

The result was interpreted as a vote of confidence in Mayor R. B. Wilson and the members of city council.

"It is most encouraging," Mayor Wilson said last night, "that the public has seen fit to endorse council's scheme for capital works over the next five years in this handsome fashion."

"Now we have the tools to get on with the job."

SOME WORK DONE

City manager Dennis Young, who drew up the five-year program, said some preliminary work on an implementation schedule for the next 18-month period has already been done.

The big job ahead includes engineering studies, acquisition, and in some cases expropriation of property, application for grants from senior governments, drawing of plans.

BORROW $1,500,000

According to Mr. Young's findings the city can afford to borrow approximately $1,500,000 to carry out projects between now and the end of 1965.

For this amount there was no charge in the 1964 mill rate and taxes next year will be increased by about one-fifth of a mill to cover the capital borrowing.

Additional funds will be obtained in the form of federal and provincial grants.

BOWKER FIRST

The first project, beginning sometime in August, is likely to be the early stages of covering of Bowker Creek.

Working drawings for the 25-car parking facility in Centennial Square are already in preparation and it is hoped to call for tenders by early September with a start on construction sometime in October or November.

CONTRACT IN FALL

Plans for landscaping of Bastion Square are expected to be submitted for committee study by mid-July and it is hoped the contract can be let this fall so that it qualifies for full winter works grants. Tentative completion date is late spring or early summer of 1965.

Kennedy Offer Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has politely rejected an offer by Attorney General Robert Kennedy to serve the U.S. administration in South Viet Nam, it was learned Thursday.

Negroes Clubbed in Pool

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Club-swinging police clashed Thursday with Negroes trying to integrate a motel swimming pool, bringing renewed violence to a troubled city trying to work out its racial problems.

Cries of "Arrest them! Get the dogs!" came from a watching crowd of 100 whites as police ringed the pool at the Monson Motor Lodge and rained blows on heads, backs and shoulders of five Negro men and women in the water.

Finally, the bruised Negroes, along with two white companions, climbed out and went to jail.

Manager James Brock of the Monson Lodge, an almost daily target of the integrationists, went to the steps of the motel restaurant to meet the first group of demonstrators. Soon he was angrily pushing and shoving them.

Brock rushed to the poolside with two gallons of muriatic acid, a water purifier, and threw it at the demonstrators. Some of the liquid spilled on his arm and he washed the acid off in the water. None of the demonstrators was harmed by the acid.

City Stores Don't, Won't—But Will

Victoria department stores don't and won't stock topless bathing suits but they will get them if requested, department spokesmen said yesterday.

Actually the topless suits have come too late for this summer's stocks.

When buying was done in November, the suits weren't available and it will be fall before the stores buy for next summer.

One woman in Eaton's sportswear department, when asked if the store would stock them, said "I would say emphatically not." But department manager Brian Johnston said they might be carried as a matter of interest.

"If we are asked for them, we will air express them in. We haven't been offered any by our Canadian agent," Mr. Johnston said.

He said that he plans to visit the Vancouver Bay Mart Monday and expects that salesmen there will discuss the suits with buyers.

"The idea is almost for next season," Mr. Johnston said.

Another store spokesman said the store is not planning to get any suits in and added, "I don't feel there is a market for them in Victoria."

'Drunken' Hundreds Stand Good Chance Of Retrieving Fines

In Trade Deck

Maple Leaf Joker

OTTAWA (CP)—Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) Thursday night criticized the trade department for distributing promotional card games in which the maple leaf symbol is used as the joker.

Industry Minister Drury said the cards were designed and ordered in January, 1963, before the Liberal government took office. (See also Pages 5, 18.)

Mr. Horner raised the issue in the Commons adjournment debate, saying all Canadians will be shocked to hear the department is distributing the card decks throughout the world at various fairs. The games, known as Canadian Maple Leaf and Canadian Timber, were similar to Old Maid.

In the maple leaf game, one card was an exact replica of the proposed flag, he said.

He termed it a waste of the taxpayers' money and "a shame on the Canadian maple leaf."

As lawyer Hill put it, the city has been collecting fines and bail forfeitures from people "not charged with anything."
